LOOKING AHEAD ...

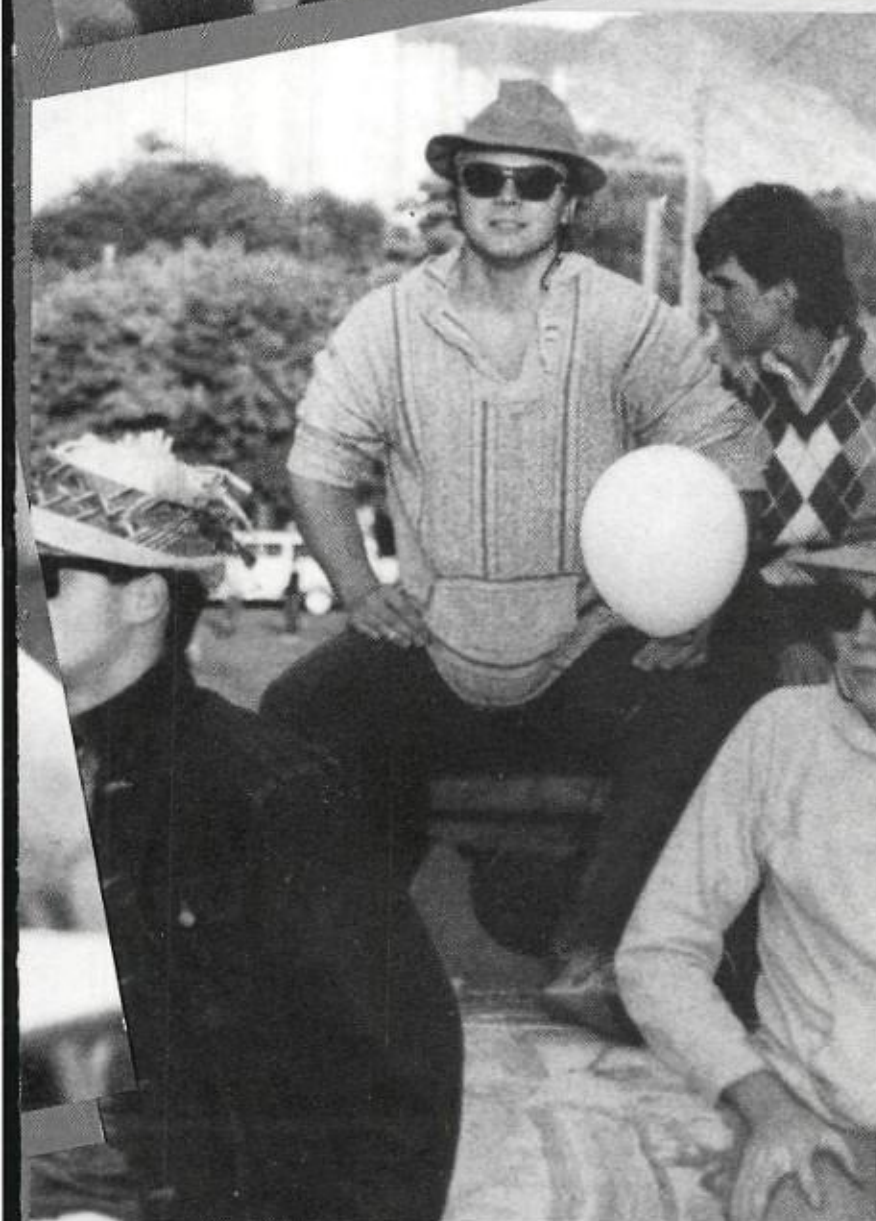

The student-body at Logan High is always on top and looking to the future. The many changes in our school reflect our dedication to the future. In trying to improve our own lives, we also improve the lives of others. Let's make it great for all of us!

BREAKING THE PATTERN IN:

Sports	44
Organizations	70
Studentbody	112
Academics	158
Publicity	186

ALWAYS ON TOP

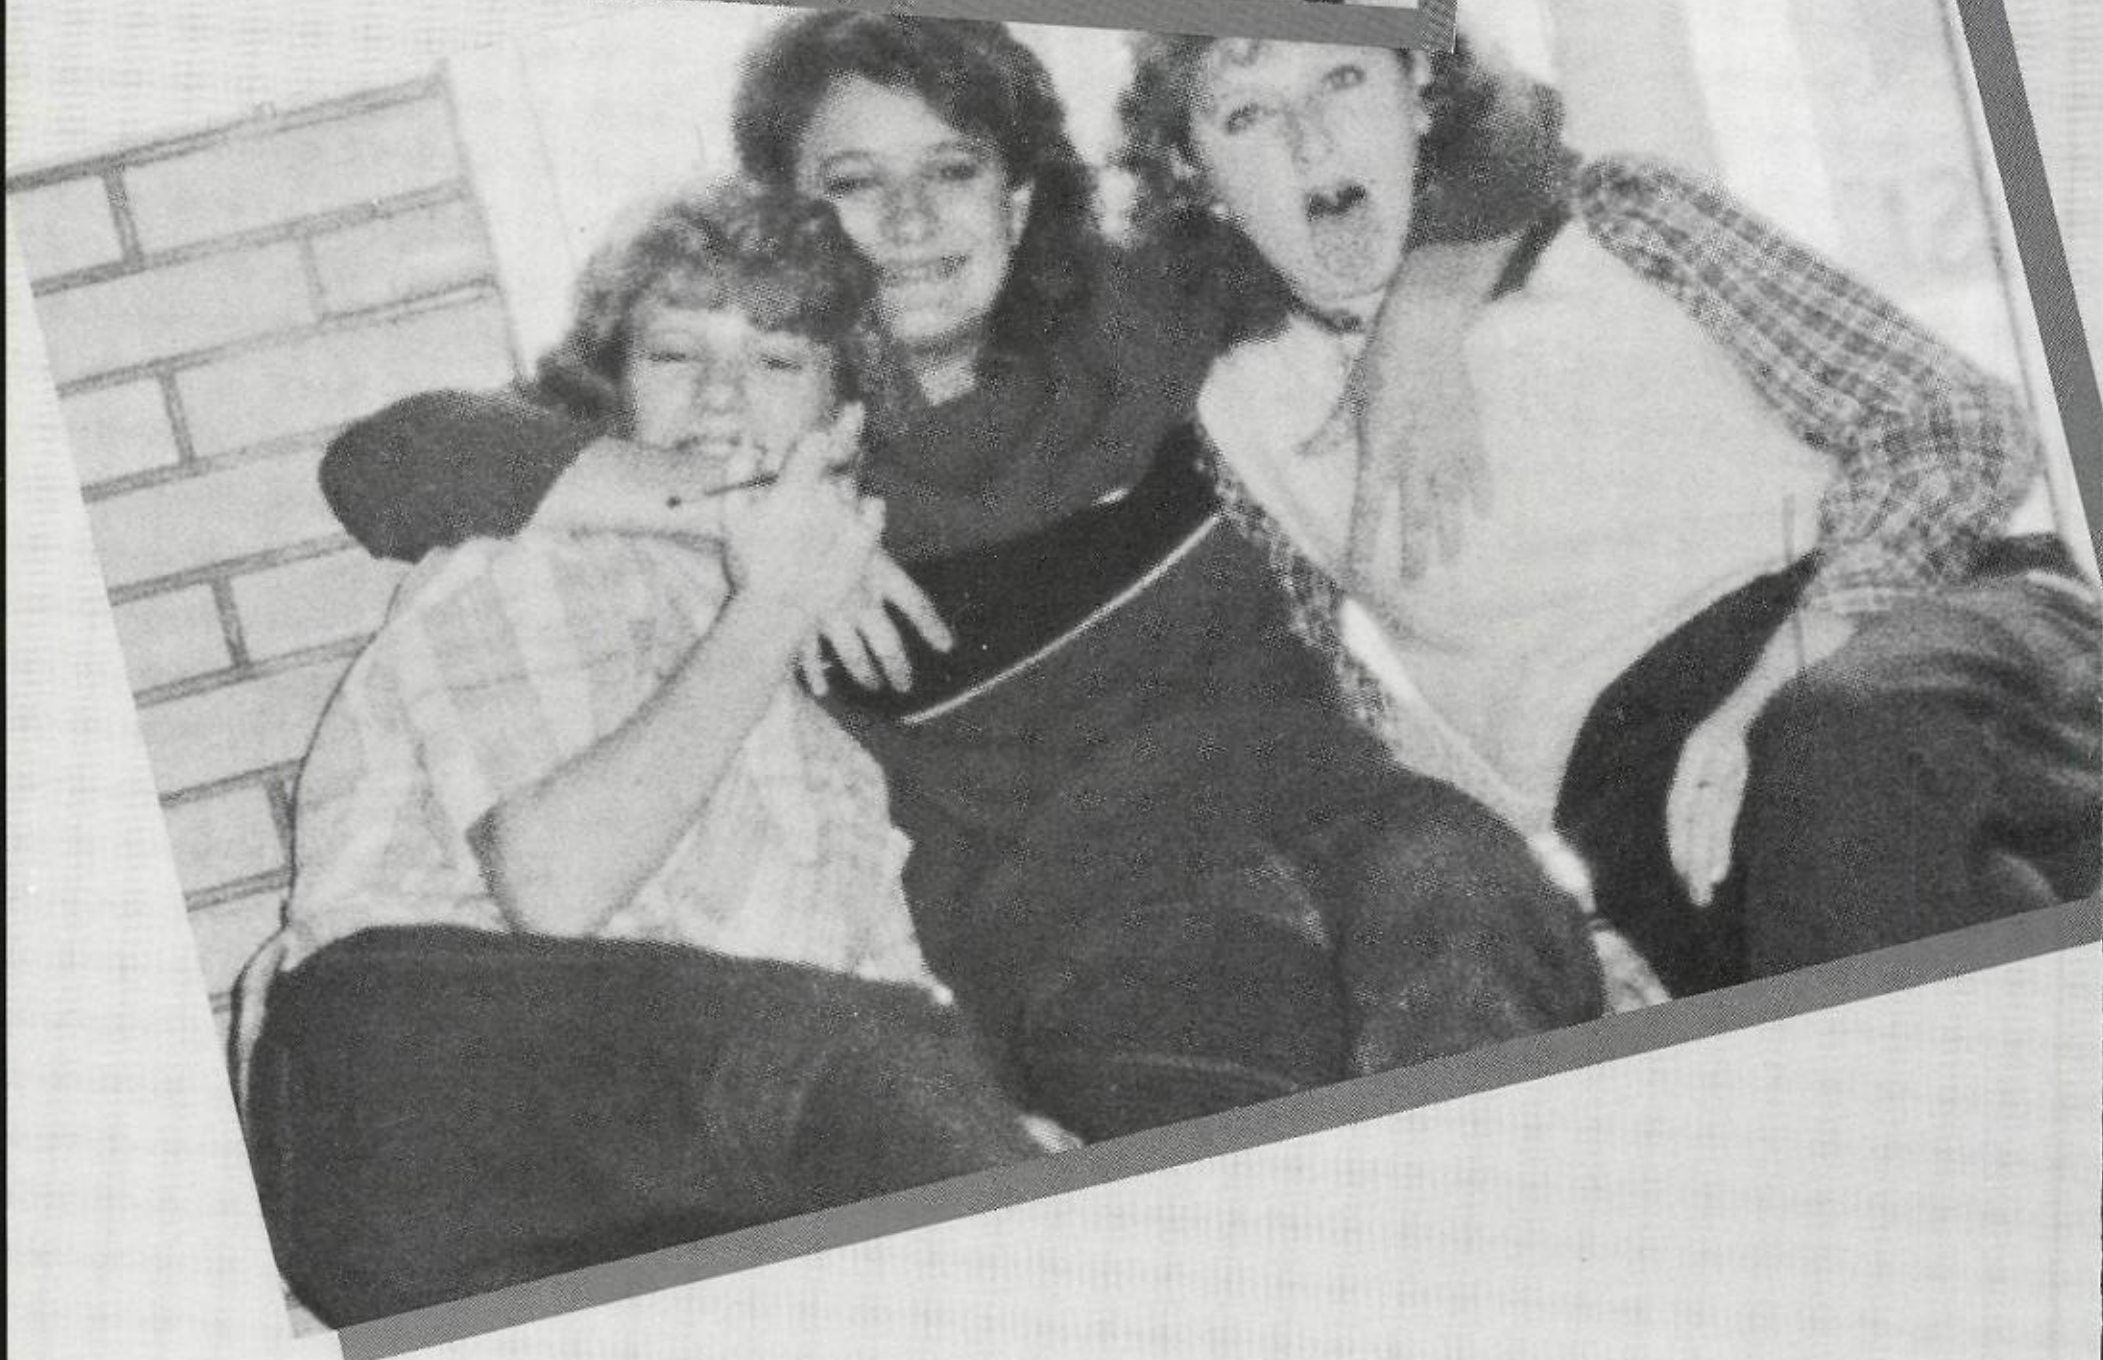

Throughout the school year students have excelled in making this year the best ever. Even with the many changes, we have always shown our superiority. Very few people disliked the change. Steve Smith said, "I thought it did a lot to improve academics."

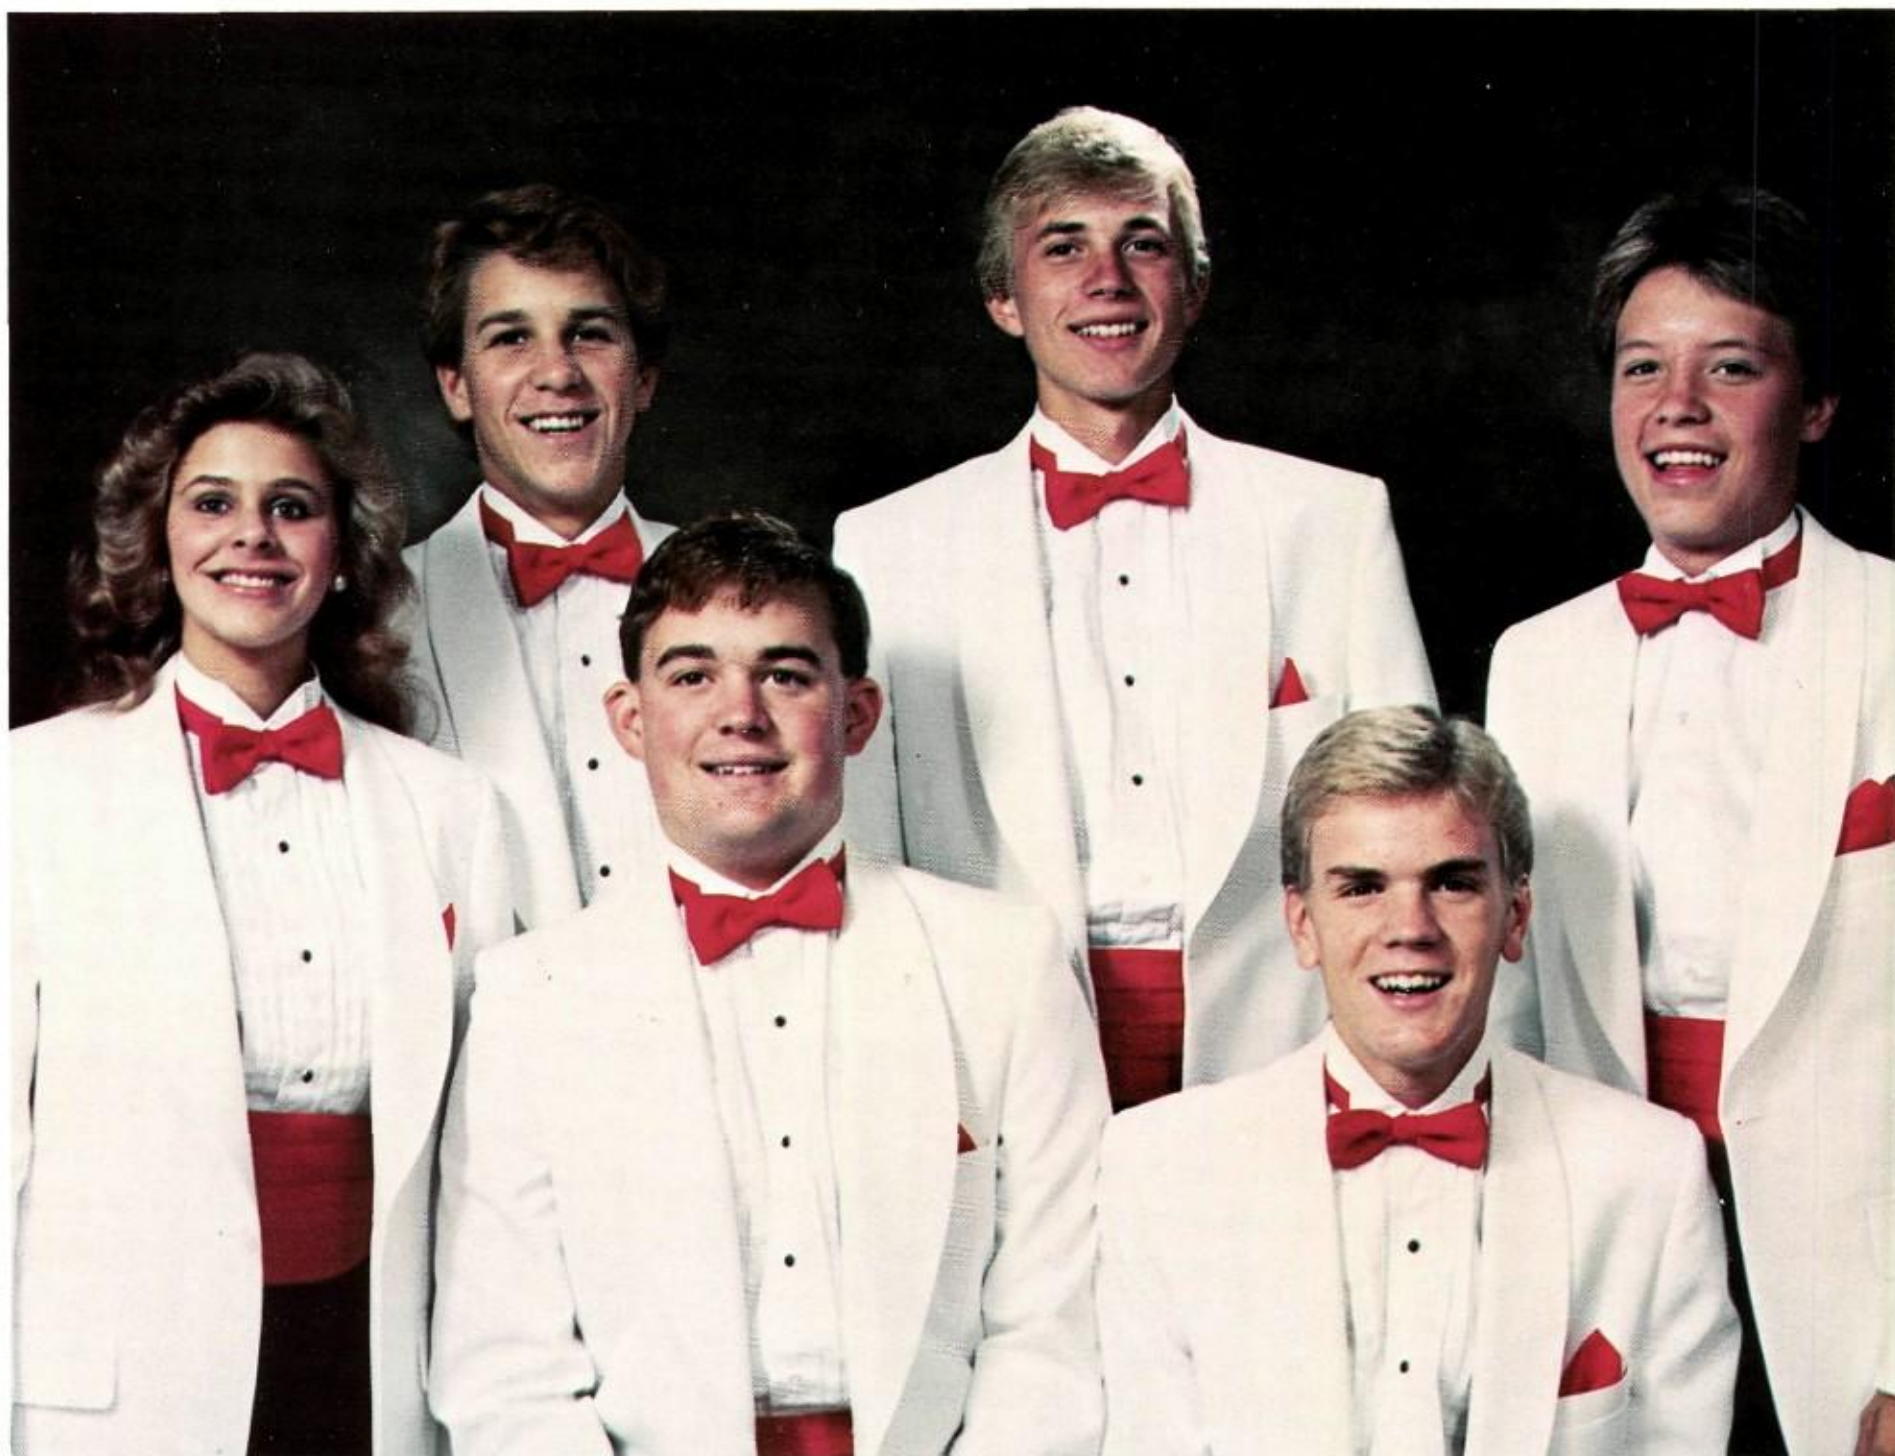

1. The first place Freshmen float moves through downtown Logan.
2. Perry Christensen voices his opinion to a referee at Homecoming game.
3. Theresa Sozio joins Hi-Lo's as they ride three-wheelers down parade route.
4. Alan Stettler enjoys Brickettes.
5. Teri Thorne rides with other officers on Junior class car.

SPR97

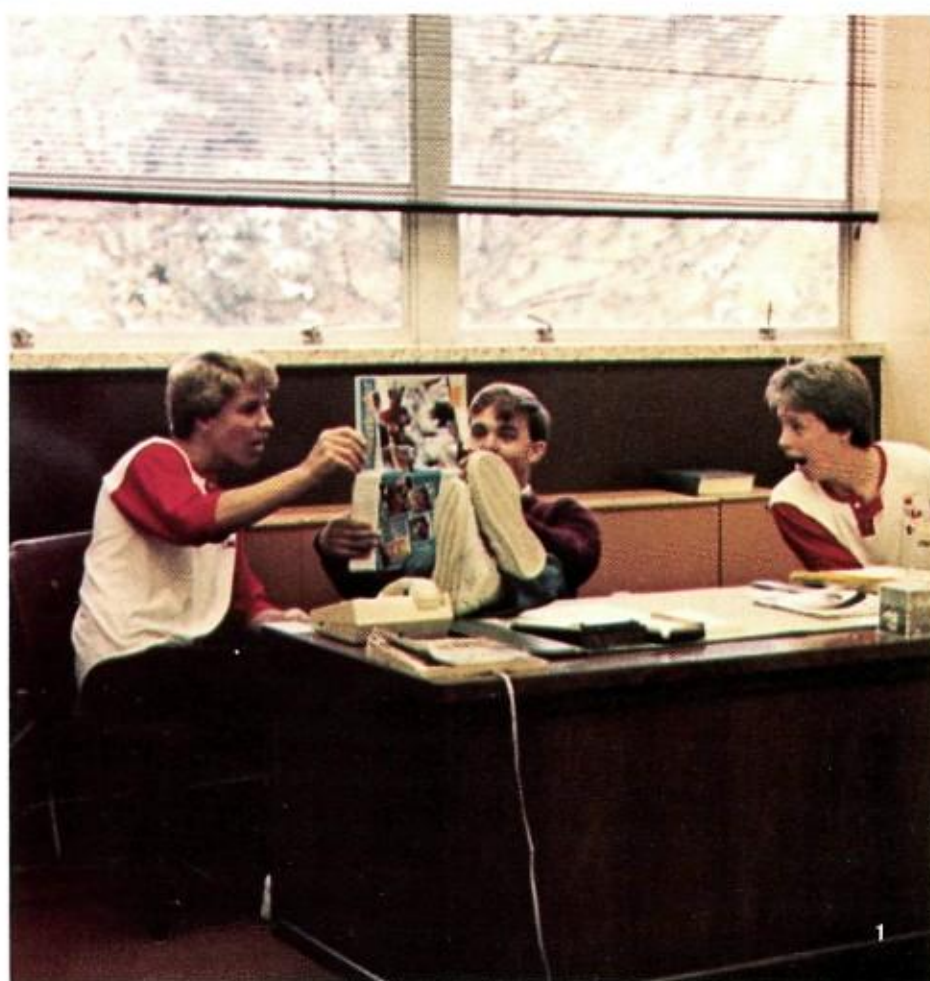

After 2:30 everybody needs time to escape the normal day-to-day life of high school. From working to sleeping, shopping to skiing students made every second of their hard earned time count. So break the norm and put a little "spirit" into your life.

Studentbody Officers: Jean Matthews, Secretary; Zann Horlacher, Vice President, Mark Thorpe, Executive; Ron Smellie, Executive; Pete Miller, President; Ken Handy, Executive.

TAKING CHARGE

The studentbody officers broke the pattern this year by setting new traditions. The five boy one girl squad of officers set out to accomplish many things that were considered impossible, such as getting an "L" on the mountain. Some of the officers responsibilities included Homecoming which required them to put in an all-nighter to decorate for the dance. Many of the assemblies and dances were also under their direction.

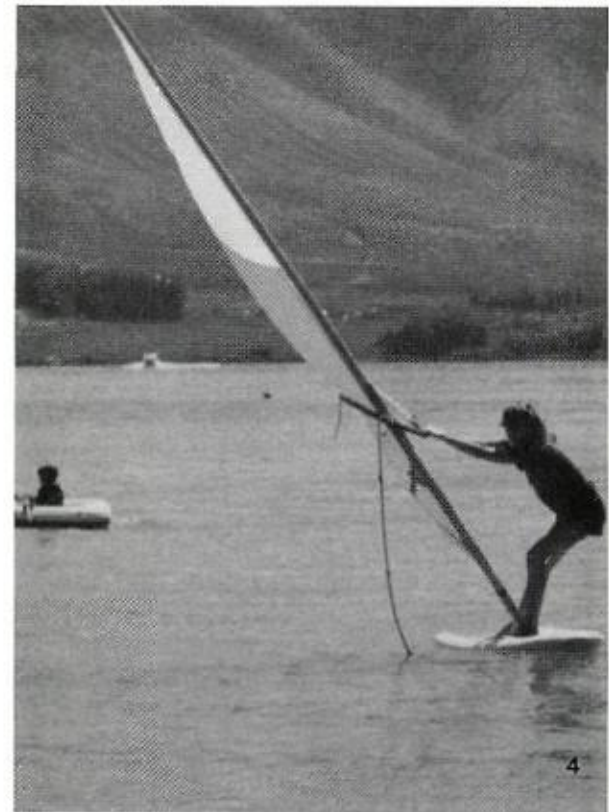

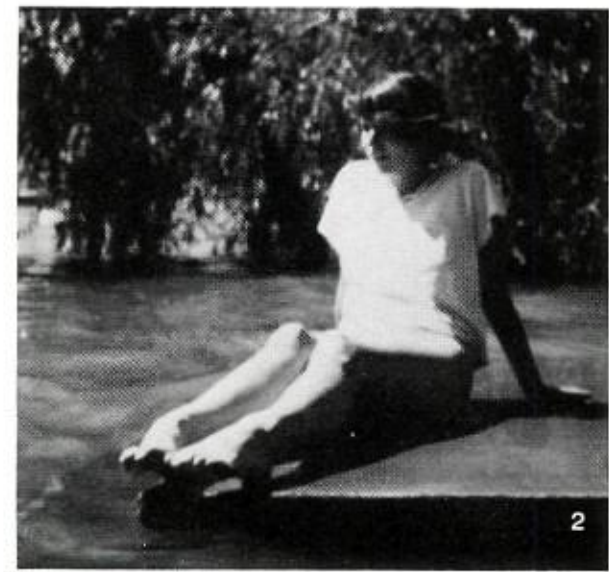

Secretary Jean Matthews said, "It was great working with five guys, but once in a while we needed a little more of the feminine touch."

The theme chosen by the studentbody officers for the year was "Make the Most of It." The officers chose the theme to encourage students to get involved and to make the most of their high school years. Executive Mark Thorpe commented, "If students only knew how much fun school is when you are involved, they would participate in everything."

President Pete Miller said "It was really fun being an officer and I really learned about putting your mind to something and getting it done. For instance if we had procrastinated on working on getting the "L" we never would have made it, but through a lot of hard work we pushed it and we now have our own "L" on the mountain."

With the help and support of the studentbody, administration, and faculty, the officers made it a year that will be remembered forever.

1. Some of the officers relax in Mr. Haslam's office after making some executive decisions.
2. Jean and Zann cruise around in the Homecoming parade on their scooters.
3. Mark Thorpe lends a helping hand in putting out the fire.
4. Pete tries to persuade Jean into going along with his idea.

Summer!

Summer found the Grizzlies soaking in the rays, lounging around, and taking it easy. Trips were made as far away as Europe and as close as Bear Lake, Hyrum Dam and Green Canyon. Students rediscovered the great outdoors, saving money and gas, by going camping and hiking. Many attended the various camps and courses offered by U.S.U. and other nearby schools.

In order to support their summer fun, many made time for work. Grizzlies were employed in all kinds of areas. Theaters, grocery stores, restaurants, and the U.S.U. campus provided us with our necessary cash.

Summer was also a great time to enjoy some good tunes. Music lovers of all types rejoiced as Utah attracted more than its usual share of concerts. Some of the favorites whose tours passed through were The Cars, Wang Chung, Berlin, Talk Talk, The Thompson Twins, The Eurythmics, Howard Jones, Rod Stewart, Jeff Beck, R.E.M., Echo and the Bunnymen, Ratt, Twisted Sister, and Night Ranger. As the year progressed, even Logan got into the act, hosting Chicago at the U.S.U. Spectrum.

Due to the popularity of the groups, tickets were in great demand.

"I camped out in a truck in the Budget Tapes parking lot to get Cars tickets" said Senior Kerry Thayn, "No one got any sleep, but we got great seats for the concert."

After all the effort, some of the concerts weren't all they were cracked up to be.

"The Cars had no enthusiasm at all" several students commented.

The Berlin/Talk Talk concert was relocated to the Assembly Hall where the acoustics left much to be desired.

Despite the dissappointments, most concerts were enjoyed. They made a great summer excursion and although tickets cost in upwards of twelve dollars, most felt they were worth the price.

1. "Are we moving?" (Yvonne Duncan, Kerry Thayn)
2. A stranded Sheri Quinn wonders if there is a Coast Guard at Hyrum Dam.
3. "Just once more around the lake, Dad, please." (John Monson)
4. "How's this?" (Kerry Thayn)
5. "Are we going camping or not?" (Ned Malouf, Shane Hansen, Kerry Thayn, Bill Anderson, Yvonne Duncan, Jon Wadsworth)
6. Greg Waddoups, Chuck Smith, Chris Nettleton, Louis Paul, Mike Tueller and Dave Mortensen show off their concert t-shirts.
7. The sounds of summer: "Aaaaghhhh!!!"

Homecoming Week Ends with a VICTORY

It all began at 6:30 on the morning of September 17 when the enthusiastic seniors got grubby and painted the town. They vandalized (or beautified) the store windows up and down main street. The next day during the lunch hours, the fast paced broad jumpers leaped over the courageous girls who dared lie in a line. Wednesday the alumni entertained and reminisced with the students in an assembly. The studentbody officers produced, directed, and filmed a video to introduce the rest of the activities.

At 7:00 on Thursday, the parade made it's way down main street. First place float was the Freshman class float, while the Amphion staff took second place. The spirit club piled on the fire engine, and the red and gold teams cheered for their victory along the way. The band uniformly marched, while the officers zoomed around on their Honda scooters. The parade ended at the school, and the powder puff game began. The graceful, energetic girls played hard, but the red team triumphed to end the game with a score of 8-6. Then the rain began, and the population of the school crowded around the sophomore bonfire trying to warm their soggy bodies.

The next day the pep rally got everyone excited as Coach Comadena taught the studentbody "YEAH." Then it was announced that we got an 'L' on the mountain. The game, which was at night, was played against Sky View. The skills of the team were shown by the exciting victory that ended with a score of 33-16. The week was concluded with a night to remember at the dance. A lot of effort and work was put forth, and it made homecoming the best ever.

HOMEcoming ROYALTY: Trudy Hatch, Attendant;
Kristen Spencer, Queen; Patti Potter, Attendant.

Spirit is shown as the red team is getting ready to win, and the town is painted in crimson and gold.

The Brickettes and the Spirit Club members are all caught up in the excitement of the parade, which was followed the next night by an awesome victory over Sky View.

Red Triumphs!

The Gold team led by their tough quarterback, Holly Starks, made the first touchdown, which got the crowd cheering and thinking that the Red team would never catch up. But minutes later, Trudy Hatch surprised the crowd by evening up the score. The Red team pulled ahead with a two-point conversion leaving the score 8-6.

Angie Christensen of the Red team put away the Gold team's hope of winning by an interception leaving the score still at 8-6. Win or lose, both teams would agree that powder puff was one of the highlights of Homecoming.

MAJOR CHANGES

Due to the change to the four year high school system there was a sudden influx of students. With a few hundred freshmen and increasing numbers in the upper classes, it became difficult to find some space.

Halls and stairways, which in previous years were crowded are now nearly impassable on good days. The Senior hall, previously sacred territory of the upper-classmen, became a playground for others because lockers were assigned by first period teachers. Seniors could stand the crowded halls, the congested stairs, and even freshmen on the jock bench, but to be subjected to lockering in the chicken coops was a major complaint of many.

Despite it's drawbacks, the new system worked out well. Athletic teams, band, debate, and theater benefitted from the freshman presence. Turnouts at sporting events increased, bringing with it a rise in school spirit.

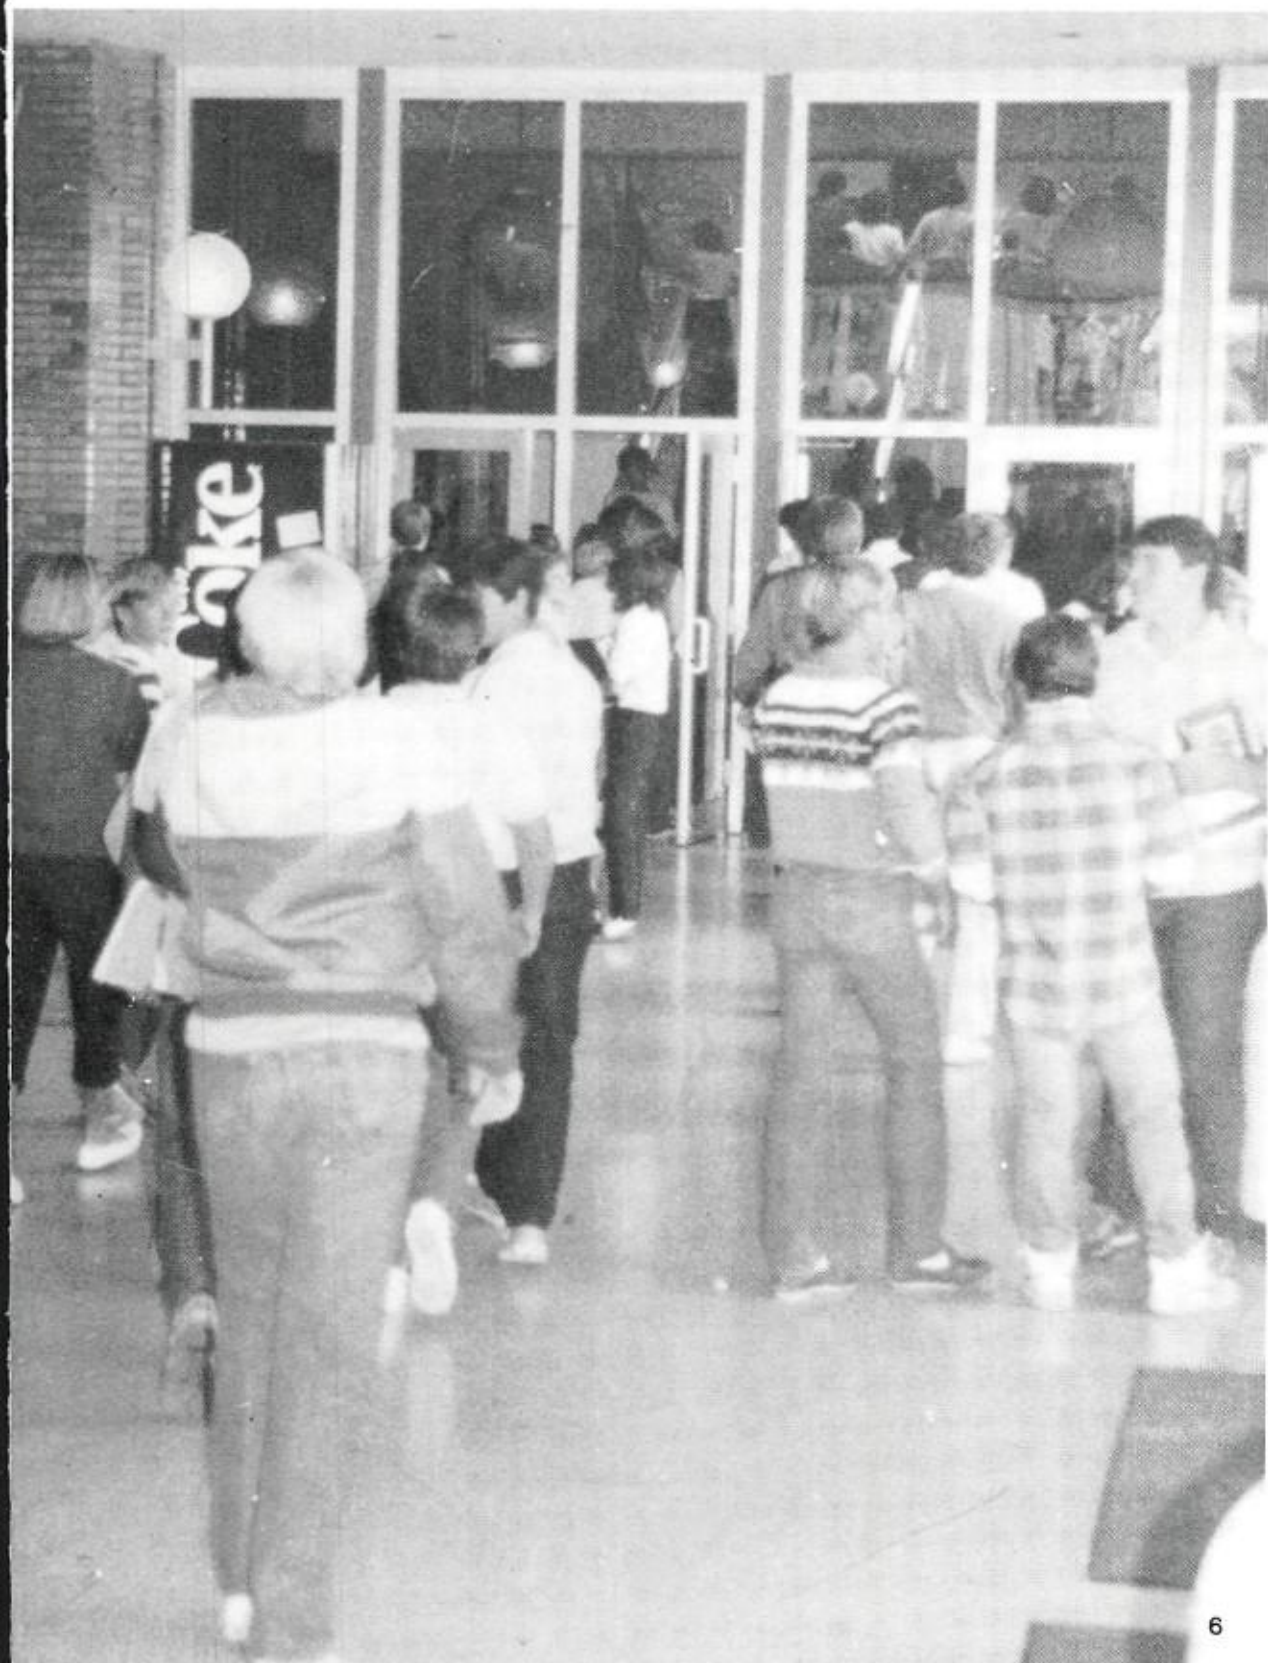

The addition of the old Woodruff School and its classroom space made the transition easier. Class size remained relatively small, allowing LHS to continue the tradition of outstanding education.

The good things about the four year system far outweighed the bad as Logan High became a "big" school. The old students got used to the new way of life, the younger ones adopted it as their own, and all worked together to improve anything that didn't run smoothly.

1. After-school gossip scene at Logan High.
2. Some after school work turns these drab lockers into a work of art.
3. Everybody wants to get into the picture.
4. Did you hear the one about ?
5. Aaahhh! Time to go home.
6. We're behind the students all the way.

Decisions, Decisions

When boxes of unsolicited college application materials are dumped in the mailbox and the familiar phrase "January 11 is the last day of register for the February ACT" graces the announcements, everyone knows decision time is near.

Where to go and what to do are the questions and very few seem to know the answers. With the help of parents and counselors, the average student spends much of the senior year preparing for and taking tests, filling out forms, and checking into scholarships. College preview days and such activities as post high school orientation are attended, and opinions are formed on the various schools represented.

The fact that Logan is a college town helps many students with their decisions. USU is a familiar place, located practically in the backyard for many, and is often a good starting block for any major. What better place to begin than the one whose name you've been wearing and whose games and dances you've been attending for years?

For those lucky few who know what they want, the decisions are easier, but for the rest of us, it's back to the counselor's computer readout and the ACT prep handbook.

Several students were asked where they wanted to go to college and why:

"I plan on going to New York City College Institute of Fashion Merchandising mainly because it's the best of its kind in the country, and the grads get the jobs." - Alisa West

"I'm going to go to a major college because I want to meet different kinds of people. I'm tired of the same things." - Sugata Biswas

"I want to go to the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland. It's a good school." - Kris Davis

"Weber State and USU have a good nursing programs, and they're among my choices." - JoAnn Albretson

"I plan on working for a year. Then I'm going to hitchhike through Europe with Scott." - Peter VanAlfen

"I plan on going to USU, at least for a while, because it's local and I don't want to go to BYU." - Shelia Ward

Free Time

Between classes, homework, and, in many cases, a part-time job, there is very little time for one to use for his own purposes. Every spare moment is wisely used whether it is in eating garlic bread at Fredrico's, drinking a Coke at the Cottage or JB's, relaxing at home, or goofing off between classes in the lobby.

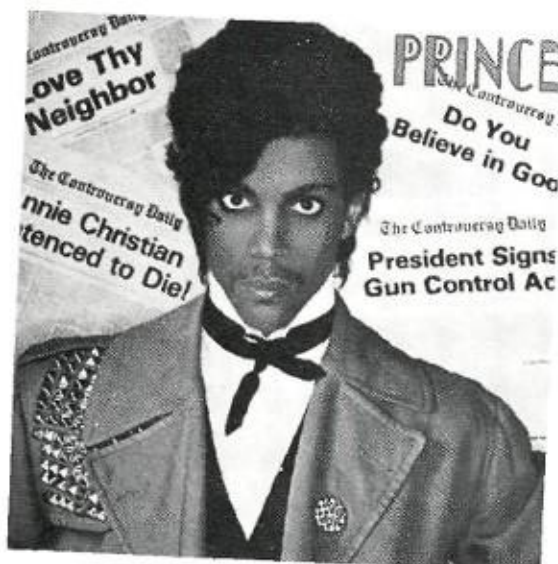

For those times when we were school bound, there were lunch "hours" during which we satisfied our quest for fun. Going out to lunch was a rushed ordeal to be avoided at all costs if one expected to get to 5th period on time. V1 supplied immobile Grizzlies with enough hot dogs and candy canes to stave off hunger pangs.

During the warmer months the lawns and lots were alive with frisbees, hacky sacks, and baseballs. When snows brought an end to outdoor action the basement hall and lobby could always be counted on for a good time.

School holidays were an added attraction if one wasn't working on an A.P. English research paper. Many headed south for some fun in the sun. Motorcycling, waterskiing, hiking, camping, and just bumming around were favorites. The hardier, or crazier, headed for the uppermost reaches of the northern Rockies in search of steep slopes and deep powder.

All told, LHS students either found fun or made fun. Whether it was between hours or after hours, the hours went by too quickly and it was back to work again.

1. Stu's AP History students experience a colloquium on slavery in hopes that it will help them score a few credits when the AP exam rolls around in May.
2. Where to from here?
3. "Have a Pepsi, join the fun." Kyle Robson, Brian Hoth, Mike Olson, Brian Cowdell, and Darin Frodsham are captured in their natural state by photographer Mike Young while spending spring break at Arches National Park.
4. "Hah, you're kidding!" Alison Berkey spends an eventful evening at Ned's.
5. Kelly Leishman and David Barratt make constructive use of some free time improving their foot-eye coordination with the help of a Hacky Sack.

The best words to describe fashion this year is new and different. Girls hair took on a short style called "Bobbs." Both guys and girls enjoyed wearing the combination of trenchcoats and scarves.

Various musicians could be heard blaring through the halls. It was a big year for acts like Prince, Bruce Springsteen, Pat Benatar, Tina Turner, Cyndi Lauper, and Huey Lewis & the News.

Ghostbusters became one of the biggest movies in history grossing over $200 million. Dallas continued to be the favorite and biggest television show. Dallas has held the number one spot since the shooting of J.R. a few years ago.

The Song Remains The Same

The year, in many respects, seemed like a continuation of years past.

President Reagan overcame Walter Mondale and other candidates to stretch his presidency into a second term. His policies, however, were different. Budget cuts in farm assistance and increases in defense spending made the news.

The Middle East remained a place of turmoil. Iraq and Iran battled for supremacy but still had time for attacks on the U.S. Lebanon, Israel, Saudi Arabia, and Afghanistan were also hot spots.

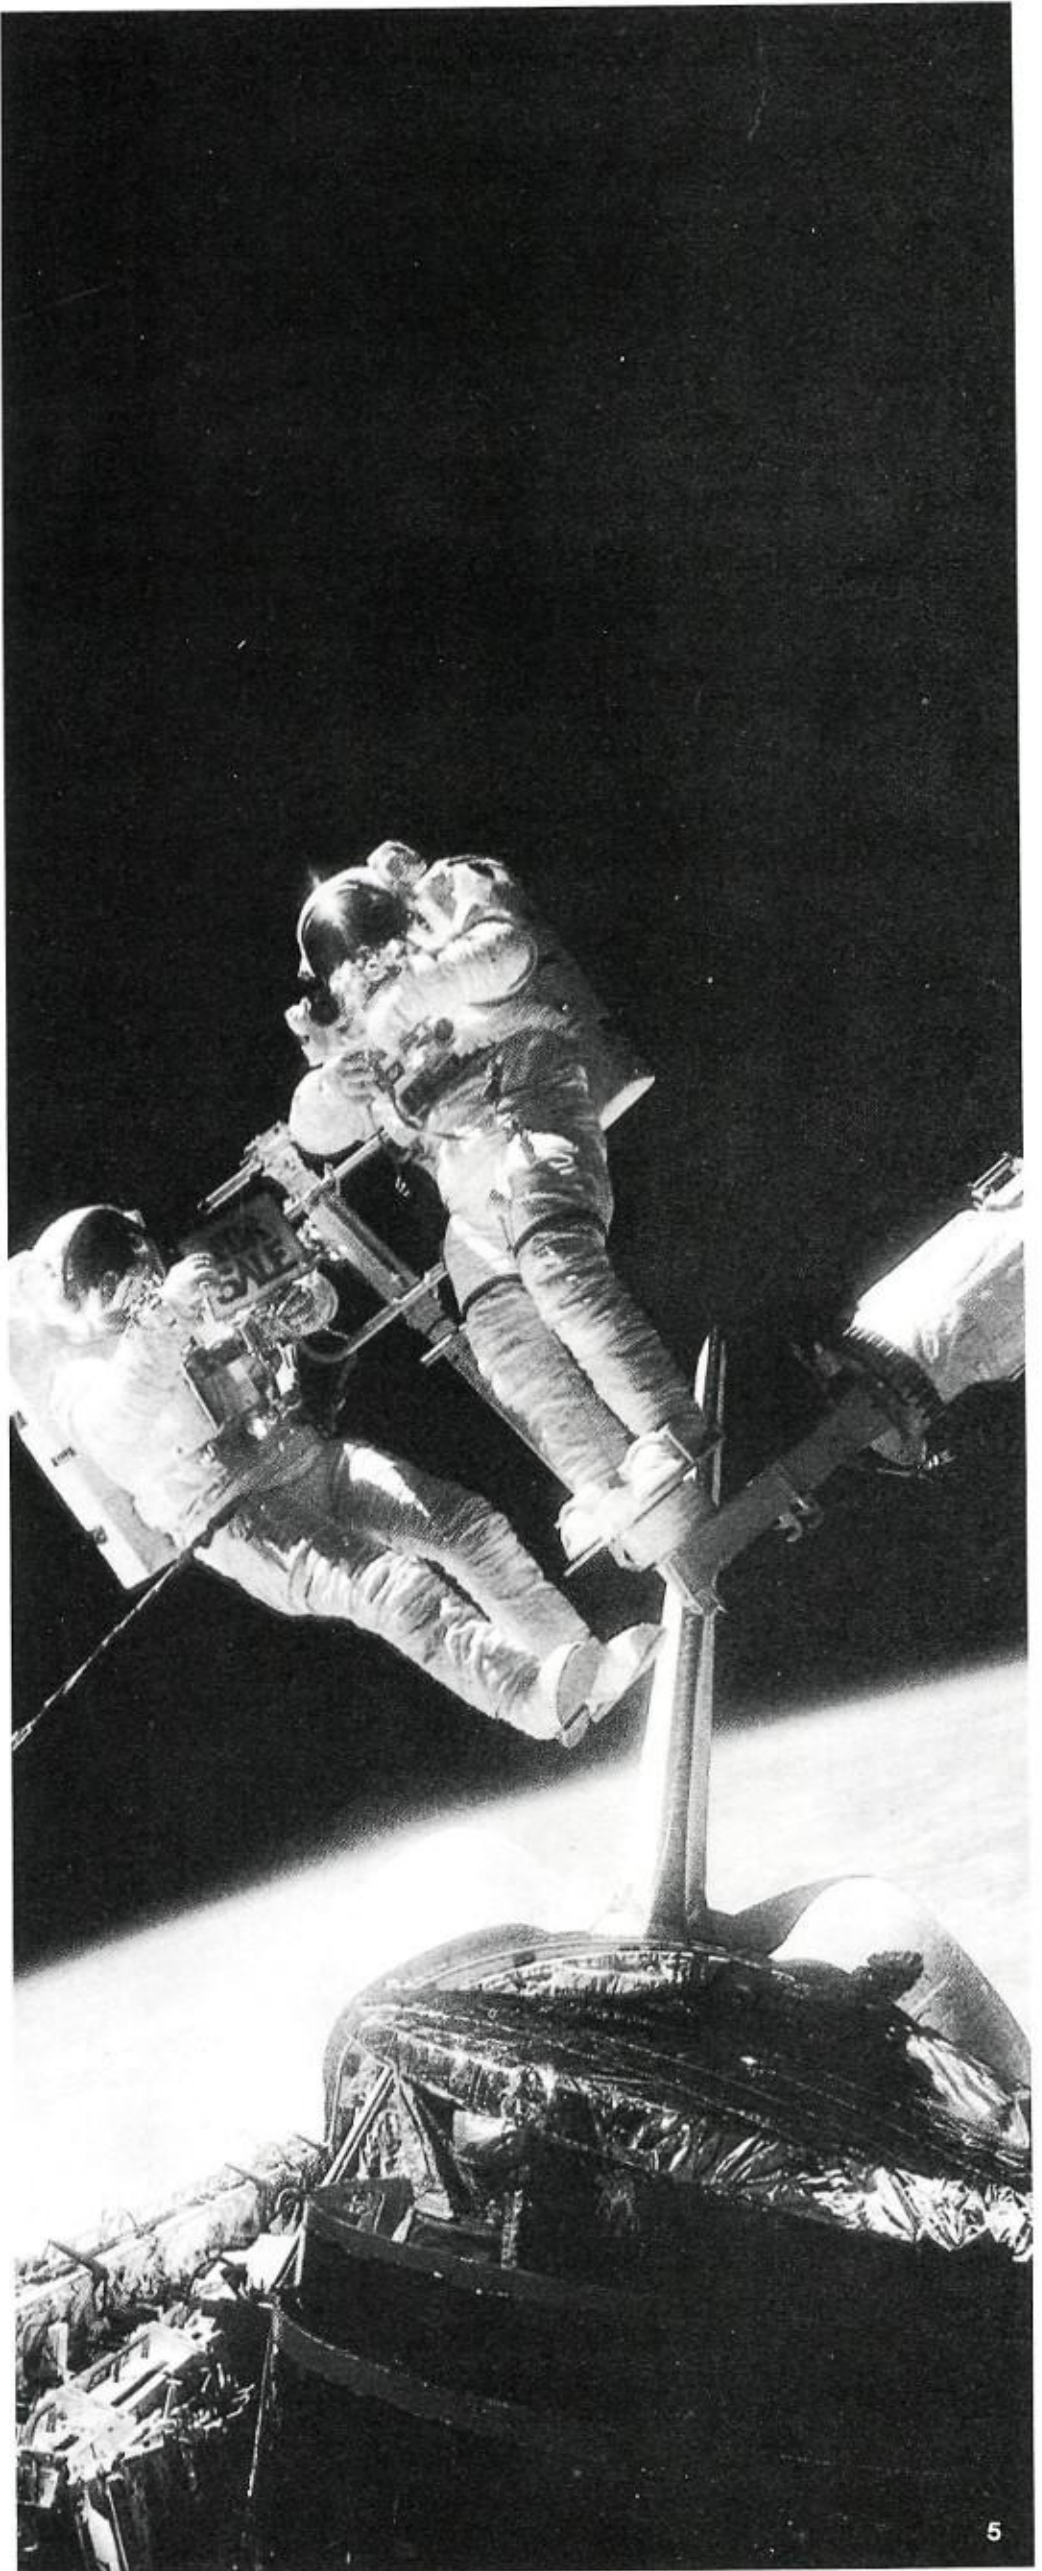

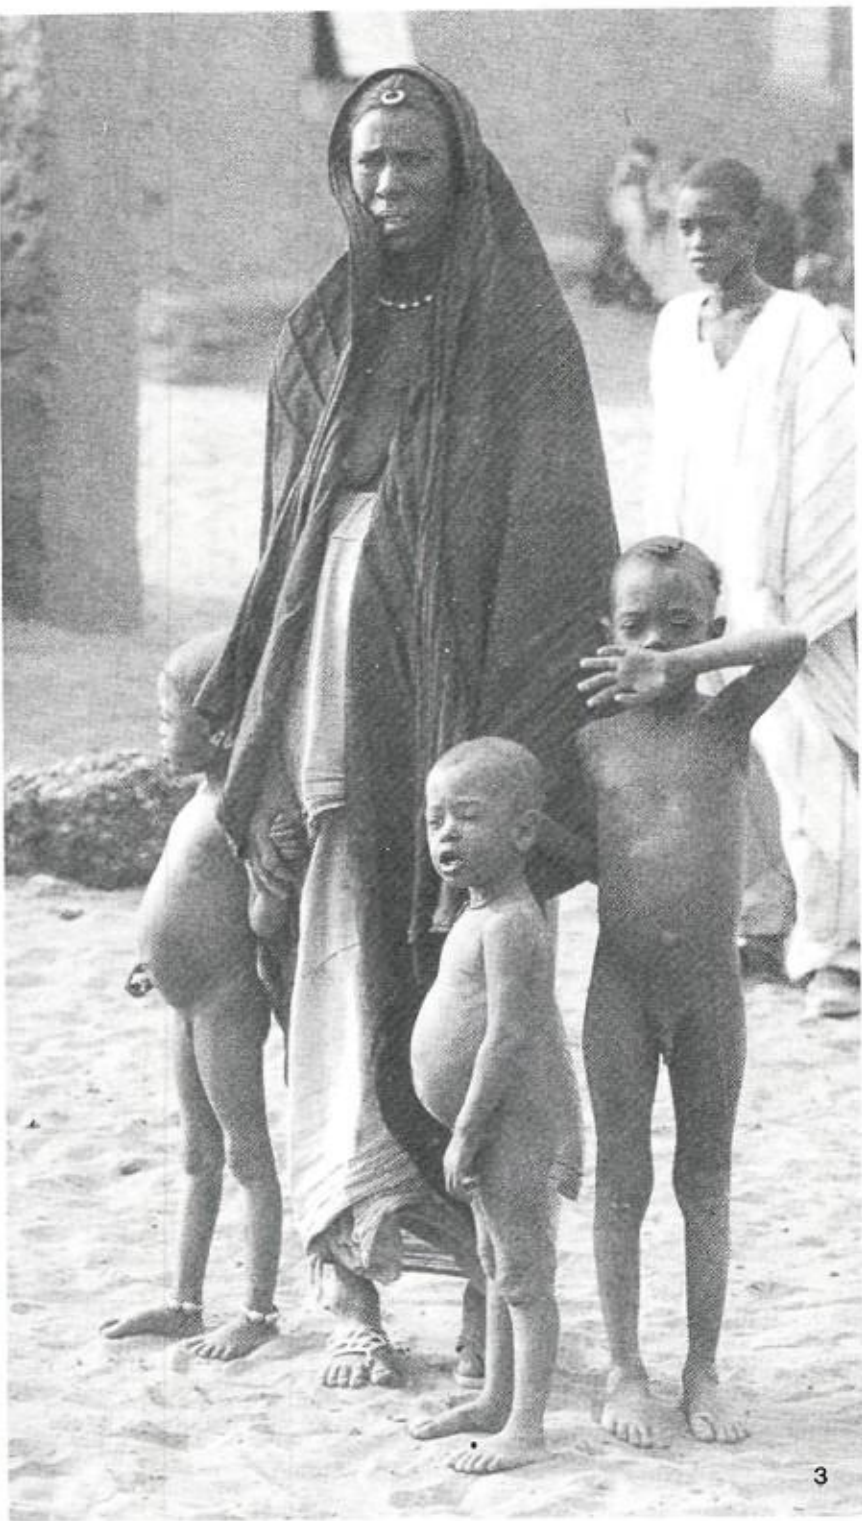

The plight of Ethiopia and other African nations, though nothing new, came into the public eye. British bands grouped together to form Band Aid with all proceeds going towards feeding the famine-stricken areas. American artists got into the act later forming a group to help the same cause.

New tragedies also headlined. An American Union Carbide chemical plant in Bhopal, India, leaked poisonous gas killing and blinding thousands instantly and causing many to fear for the future effects of exposure. A similar plant in West Virginia was closed until the cause of a leak could be found.

Back on the home front, the space program remained a concern. Whether in Star Wars weapons or the repeated launches of the space shuttles, the NASA program flourished. Utah's own senator, Jake Garn, was selected for a shuttle flight.

1. President Reagan addresses the nation.
2. Armed soldiers at attention in the Middle East.
3. An Ethiopian family wonders if there will be another meal.
4. In India, a mother and child express the opinion of most of the population.
5. The U.S. space program thrives.

What's Hot

1. Crimefighting was a newsmaker when Bernhard Goetz took it into his own hands and became known as the subway vigilante.

2. During the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles, the USA racked up a surprisingly large number of gold medals with much credit going to the gymnasts.

3. The U.S. Postal Service was hot at Christmas with their stamp designed by young Danny LaBoccettas. Their popularity waned on February 17 when a price hike brought the cost of mailing a letter up to 22¢.

4. Mick Jagger made music headlines with a solo album and a new baby, Elizabeth Scarlett. The mother was model Jerry Hall.

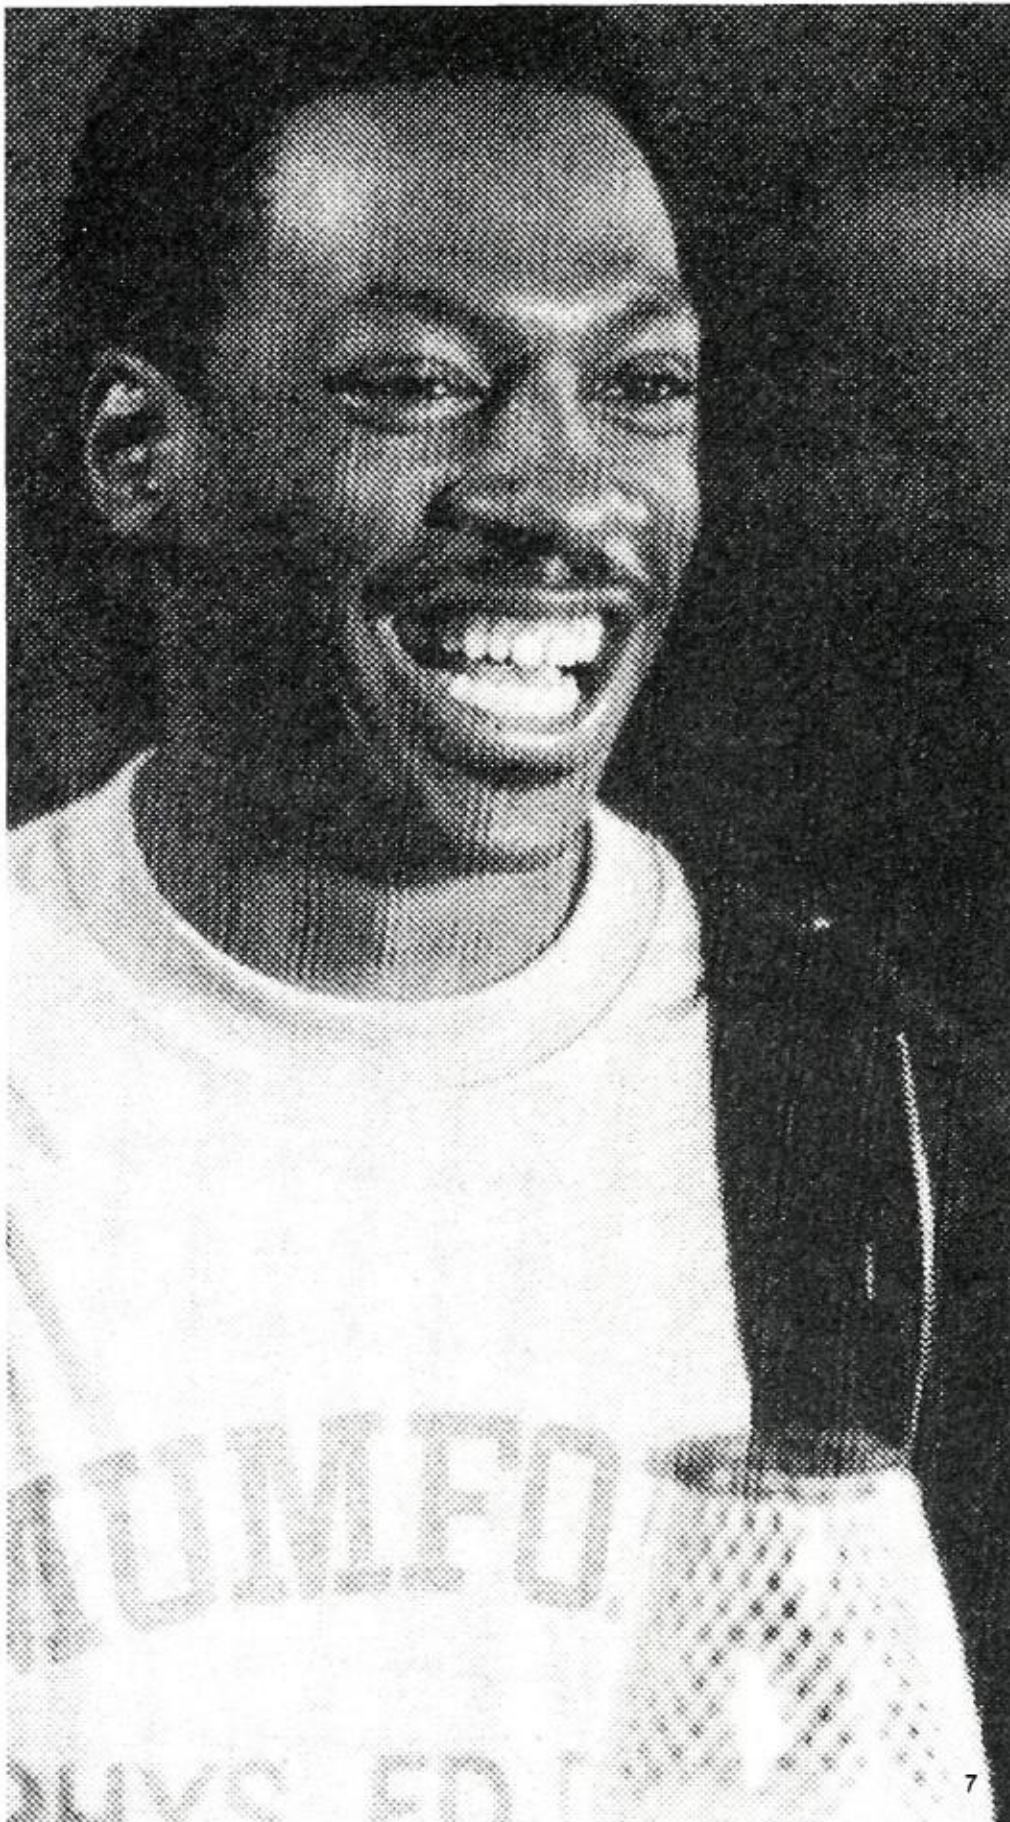

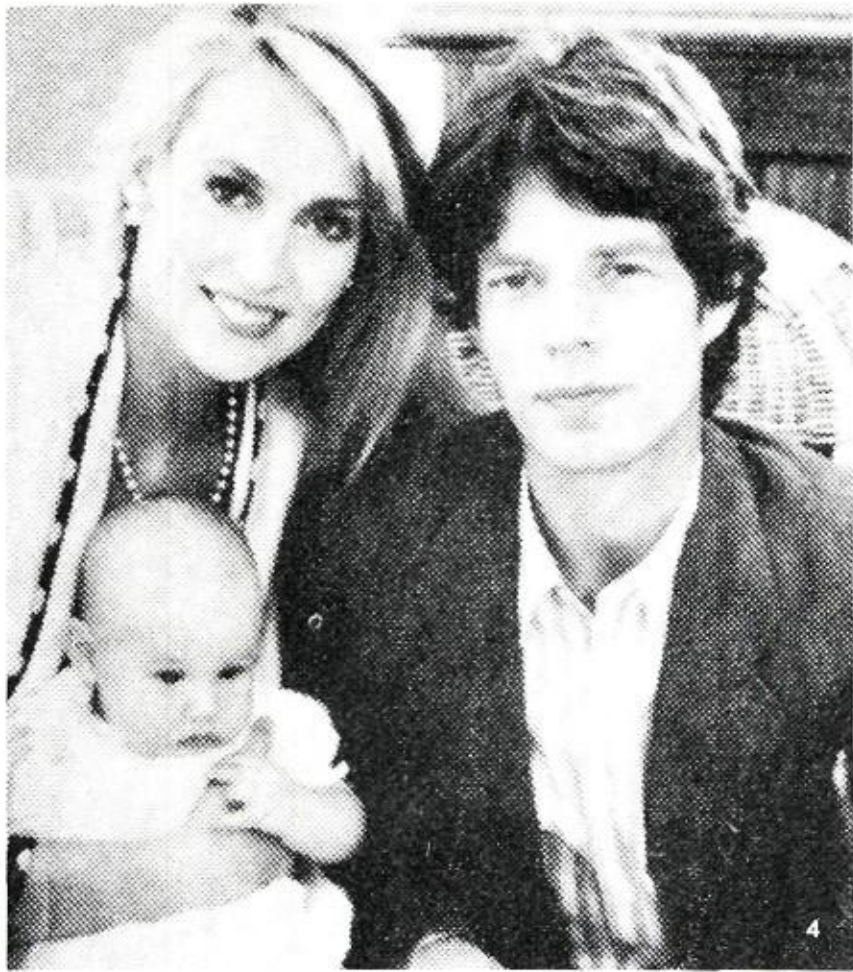

5. Garry Trudeau's comic strip, Doonesbury, returned to the papers after a 21-month absence to a bigger audience than ever.

6. Vanessa Williams found more fame after her crown was revoked. Nude pictures in Penthouse magazine cut short her reign as the nation's first black Miss America.

7. Eddie Murphy remained a box office superstar and brought fame to others. The Mumford High School sweatshirt he wore in "Beverly Hills Cop" was a top selling item, bringing money to the funds-staved school.

8. Duran Duran's Nick Rhodes dashed the hopes of many young fans by marrying.

Crowd Pleasers

The entertainment this year has been exceptionally good despite its rarity.

The first assembly of the year was held outside, due to the goodness of the weatherman. The studentbody officers staged and officiated an Olympics. Each grade was represented by individuals who were ready to win for their class. The star quarterbacks from each grade showed their skills as they tried to throw a football through a tire. The wheelbarrow and potato sack races were very entertaining. Some of the guys revealed their true sides in the eating and drinking contests. The senior took the gold, of course.

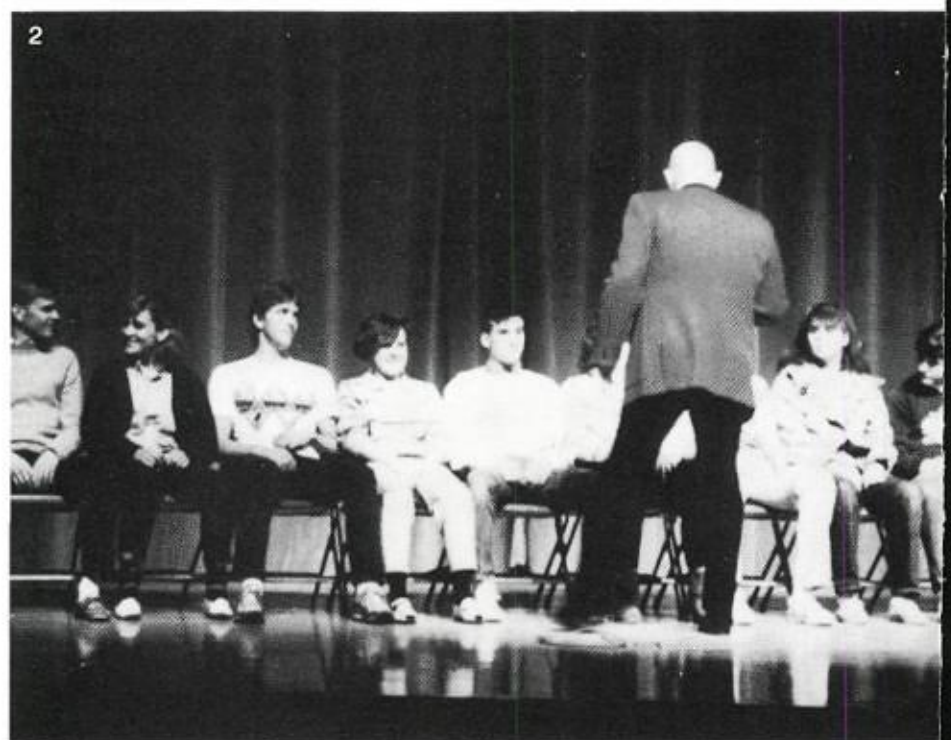

The Warren Miller ski demonstration was a great way to start the ski season. The photographer told the studentbody all about how the popular winter films were made.

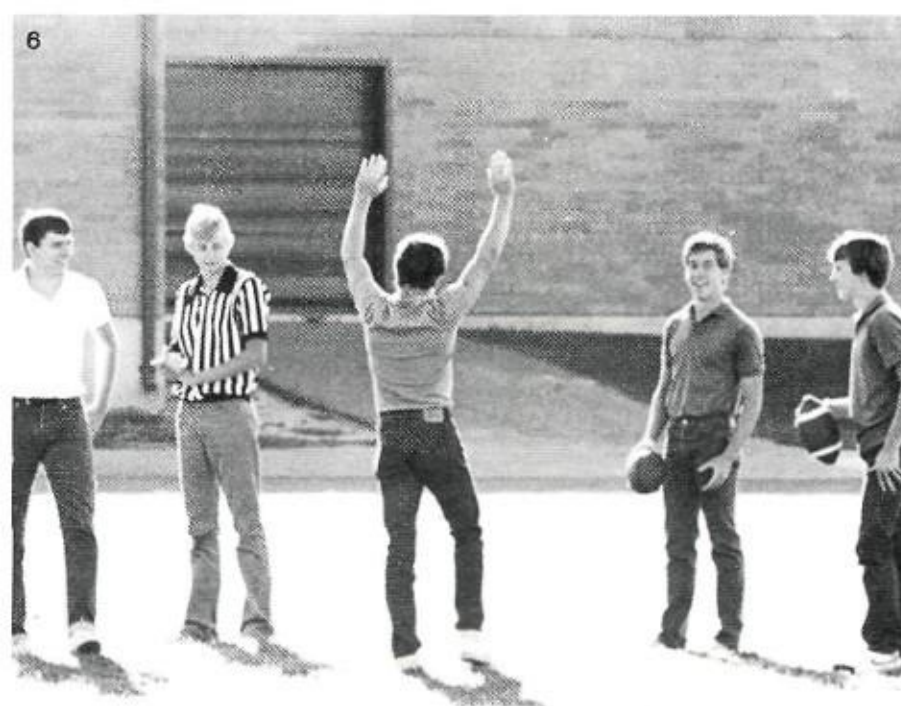

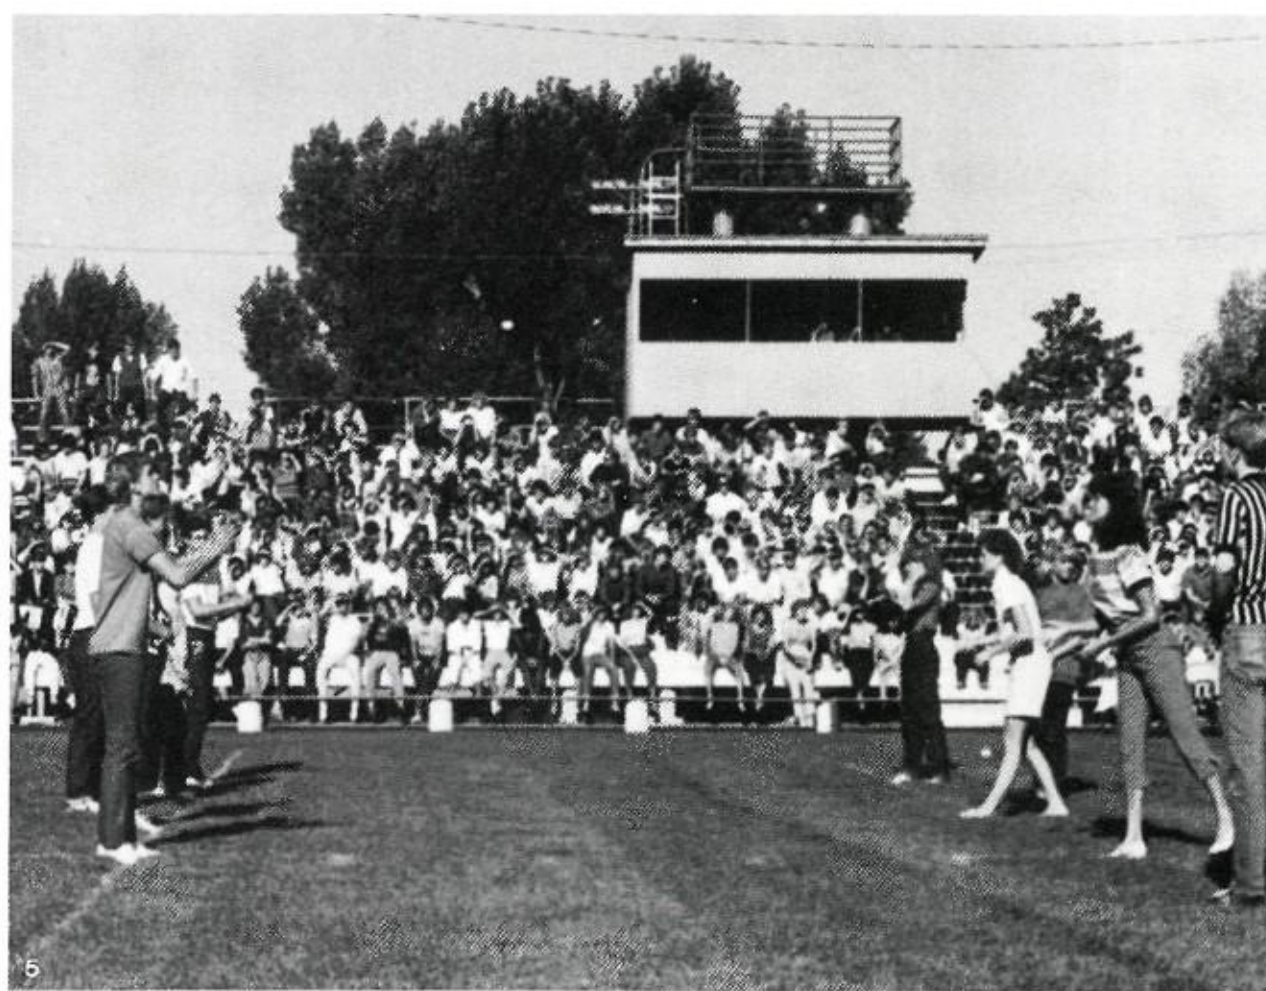

The students from Logan High enjoyed the hypnotist assembly most of all. Jack Lythgo and his lovely assistant Renae give us the same dialogue every year, but the popularity never ceases to amaze the administration as they invite him back the next year. The students were baffled as they were put under a "hypnotic" spell. Some subjects found eagles, robins and very small birds on their arms, which were only figments of their imagination. Post-hypnotic suggestions were left. When the infamous bow tie was tugged upon many strange and unusual things happened. Some people yelled POPCORN, PEANUTS, and SHUT UP. Then some girls had an overwhelming urge to show their school spirit.

John Goodard, the real Indiana Jones, shared another of his wonderful safaris with the school. His adventures were always eye-opening and proved to be very interesting.

This year the assemblies were a fresh break from the common routine of the school day.

- 1) The crowd tries to block out the sun as the tricycle is being lost by the freshman.
- 2) Your eyes are getting very hot. You cannot tolerate the light much longer . . .
- 3) You are now in a deep hypnotic sleep.
- 4) The appetites of these guys are in question as the less-than-gourmet spaghetti is being served.
- 5) The studentbody salutes the sun as they are being entertained by the egg toss event.
- 6) Alan Wimmer shows his victory. Now it's time for the lowerclassmen to prove their skill.

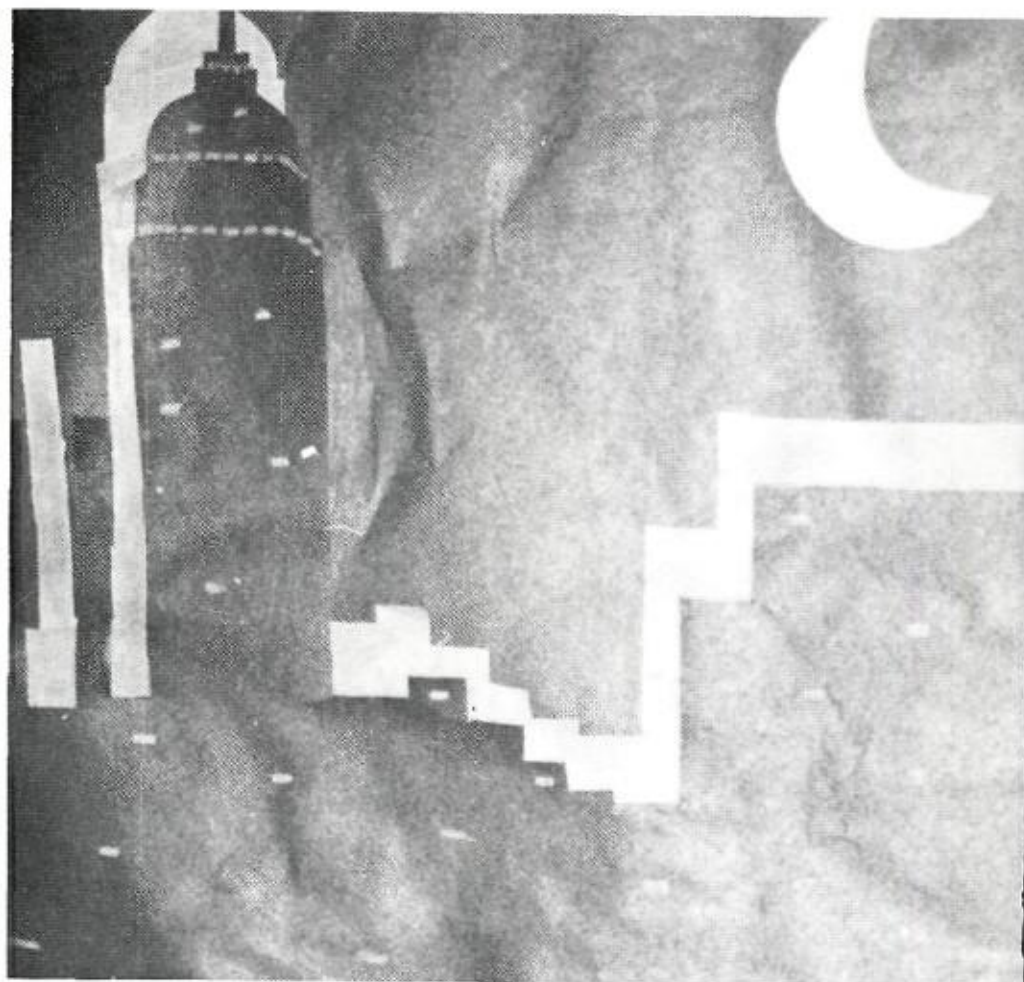

All Through the Night

The couples at Girls Choice danced

The Spirit Club sponsored a dance that was a great success. A large number of students in attendance made for an even more exciting night. The money that was made from this dance was used to transport the Spirit Club to the away games. Spirit Club really helped the school because it provided spirit at the games that weren't at home. The Spirit Club officers spend all day decorating for that night, and they helped to add that special touch to that night. The skyline gave the dance an atmosphere of being in a big city on a romantic night. The plants and benches also made them feel as if they were in a park. Above the couple's heads were huge stars, lights and a glittering ball.

- 1) The New York Skyline gives the dance an atmosphere of a night in the park.
- 2) Jennifer Johnson, Zann Horlacher, Trudy Hatch, and Carl Budge are having a wonderful time at the dance.
- 3) Couples are dancing under the stars.
- 4) Michele James is stuck atop the handy-dandy ladder.
- 5) Teresa Thomas, Anna Marie Sanders, make sure the plants and tables are just right.

The Holiday Spirit

The Christmas dance may have started a new tradition at Logan High. The studentbody officers along with the help of several school organizations made this a year of giving. The dance's decorations consisted of 12 fully decorated Christmas trees, which were later donated to needy families in the Logan area. The organizations involved were the studentbody officers, the senior, junior, sophomore, and freshmen class officers, the spirit squad, and the spirit club.

"It was neat to see everyone work so hard for a good cause. I hope that they'll do it again next year." was Mr. Olsen's comment about the dance. Logan High really felt the meaning of Christmas.

1. A tree for charity.
2. Christmas—the season of love.
3. Stocking Girl Angie Christensen and Stocking Boy Mike Grenney.

Annie

History was made at Logan High this year when 12 year old Collette Bright played the lead in the musical "Annie." Another change was that the musical was held before Christmas and had a Christmas theme.

With the new trimester schedule, everyone in the musical took a theatre arts class during fifth period which allowed them to practice during school hours. This eliminated the need for so many practices at night.

All of the cast members showed dedication, but Dan Pond probably showed the most by shaving his head to make his character, Daddy Warbucks, more convincing.

Mr. Tueller continued his role as director with the help of Jackie Fullmer as choreographer and Patti Johnson as costume director.

1. Annie discusses her optimistic outlook on life with President Roosevelt and Daddy Warbucks.
2. Daddy Warbucks is dressed for a night out in NYC.
3. Sandy was a real hit with the audience.

Wacky Women Unite

Kristen Spencer, Brooks Potter, Terri Thorne, and Mark Fjeldsted are having a wonderful time at the dance.

Ronnie Smellie, Teresa Thomas, Shelly Wegener, and Ryan Belton rest between dances.

It all began ten minutes before the closing bell. Female students were dressed in very comfortable sweats and were ready at their marks to run for the man of their dreams in the Old Girls Gym. Mr. Haslam started "The Great Race" with specific instructions to run around the goal post and then into the school. Making a beeline straight to the auditorium and up to the stage, it seemed that most of the girls suffered from hearing loss. A few who braved the cold still got their dream date, but most of the TRUE aggressive girls didn't have their plans changed! Then the night came. The decorations were great even though the Girls League only had 3 hours to fix the Rec Center up. Balloon bouquets of red and white floated all around to give the place the Valentine effect. After a nice dinner at home or Robintino's, the couples enjoyed an exciting Sweethearts Ball.

The Happiest Millionaire

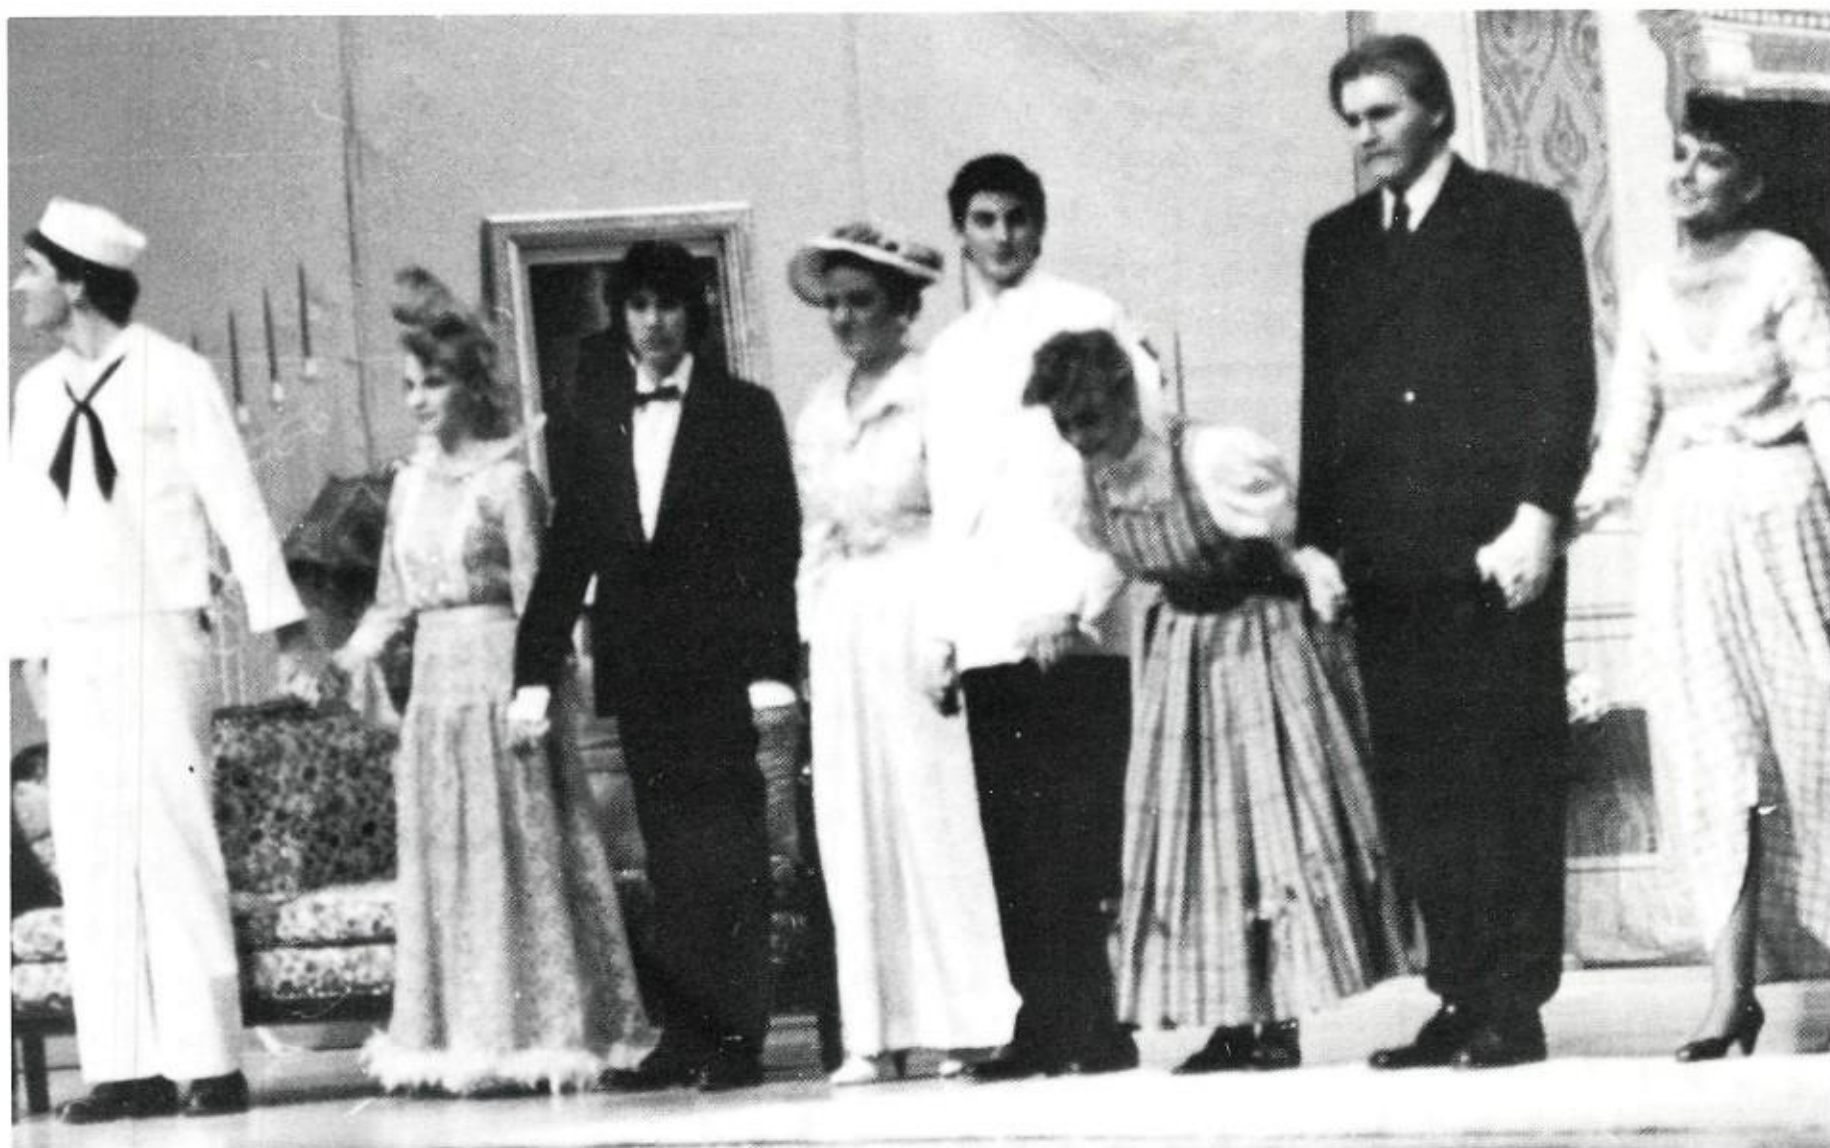

"The Happiest Millionaire" was the play put on by the Theatre Arts class this year. It was about a millionaire who sends his tomboy daughter, Cordy, to a boarding school to learn how to be a lady. While Cordy is at school, she falls in love with a "mama's boy" named Angier Duke. She brings him home and announces that they are engaged. This news brings different reactions from her family. Her mother is upset, and her Aunt Mary begins to plan her wedding. This upsets Cordy and she and Angier get married without her family knowing. The play was under the direction of Mr. Eugene Tueller and was put on March 7 and 8.

A Few Brave Souls

The fright of the unknown prevented some people from donating their blood, but a few brave souls had courage enough to let the Red Cross collect a pint.

The courageous students went through a process something like this. First they were required to show an authorization slip signed by their parents if they were only 17. Eighteen year olds and those older went directly to a table to fill out their medical history. There they had their blood pressure and temperature checked. Some students' blood was rejected because of medication taken within the previous 24 hours. Next, was the blood type and weight check. The finger was pricked and the smaller donors were weighed to make sure their weight exceeded 110 pounds. Next was the actual drawing of the blood. The arm was cleaned and a needle with a tube attached was inserted into the vein. The tube led to a small bag hanging on the side of the cot. The donor gripped a small rod to keep the blood flowing into the bag. The bag took 5 to 15 minutes to collect the pint of blood. Once the donor had given his/her share, the Red Cross volunteer unhooked the bag. The blood bag was then recorded and packed while the donor was led to the refreshment table for punch and Mrs. Field's cookies. Most donors were a little light headed and some even fainted.

By the end of the long day, the Red Cross and volunteers were ready to pack up their needles, blood bags, cots, and other blood-taking tools and go home feeling good about the deed they had accomplished.

1. Terri Kerr is excited to give blood while Nannette Alderman appears to be a bit apprehensive.
2. Ken Handy has his temperature checked to make sure it's 98.6 degrees.
3. The attaching of the blood bag is a routine thing to the Red Cross volunteer but a first for this Logan High student.
4. "My arm is killing me!" exclaims Zann Horlacher.
5. Merrill Page can't bear to look as the blood bag is attached.

SPORTS

Demonstrating skill, spirit and sportsmanship, Logan High excelled in every aspect of sports. Our teams and individuals did very well. The opponent always knew they had met their match.

Night Life

The lights weren't the only thing that lit up Logan High's Crimson Field this year. The football team did, too. The lights helped improved attendance, which was one of the city's main goals. The following comments from coaches and players sum up the Grizzly football season.

Perry Christensen (Varsity Coach): The 1984 football team will always be remembered as one of the "greats" in Logan High history. The personality of the team was one which will be hard to equal. As a team we worked harder, hit harder, and enjoyed more than we have in years. We enjoyed success as a staff and a team because we possessed that something extra that separated greatness from mediocrity.

Jon LeBaron (Team Captain): Even though we didn't have a lot of great players this year, we had a lot of good ones. In order to win, we had to play as a team. This team concept, in addition to the great fan support, helped us to a fine season.

Mike Maughan (Team Captain): Last spring I told Coach Comadena that we would be lucky to win five games. I was impressed by the way our team stuck together. It was a great year and something that I will always remember.

Mike Groll (Team Captain): I think we had a great year considering how people thought we would do. It's just too bad we had to lose to American Fork.

Mike Grenney (Team Captain): We had a lot of experience coming back this year with this year's juniors because of last year's many injuries. We were a much improved team this year because everyone worked well together and contributed. Offense-defense and passing leagues really helped to improve our skills and fundamentals with the game.

Alan Wimmer: This year's team was fun group to play with. The season never dragged or got boring.

Jeff Peterson: The '85 varsity team was the year of the studs!

Ty Eliason and Brooks Potter: This year we lost and just took the Volkswagen, but next we'll go all the way and take the Maserati.

Par for the Course

"We gave them more than they expected," commented Coach Roger Wilson after the golf season had ended. The golf team started out with what the region thought was an unexperienced team but ended up taking second place in region and seventh place at state. The team showed that even though they were young, they knew how to play the game well.

Logan golfers beat every opponent but Ogden, whom they lost to twice. "We had a winning season, losing only two close matches. We're young, and I think we'll come back even stronger next year," stated Bill Anderson. Anderson, a sophomore, had the most consistent game on the team although junior Scott Jensen was region champ. Other low scorers on the team were Brady Larsen, Karl Wilson, and Mike Gibbs.

Bartholomew puts on the speed.

"We did very well this year. The girl's team was in the second year, and we were all proud of our accomplishments. We placed third in region and twelfth in state. Each of us reached our goals. I hope in the future the girls' and guys' teams grow and improve, and that we get more school support for our efforts," said Bridget Nelson.

Both the boys' and girls' cross country team did well. Cross country is a sport of endurance. Runners need to be able to run for a long distance and be able to keep up the pace. These are unique people, and Logan's lucky to have the few they have.

Girls' team members included Kris Davis, Kristen Houghton, Bridget Nelson, Maura Nelson, and Julie Swallow.

A Learning Season

Although the volleyball team had many defeats, the team didn't give up. In fact if anything it made their spirit boil. The team was young, but did have a few veterans such as seniors Holly Starks, Diane Carling, and Wendy Hall. Returning juniors Judi Grenney, Penny Baugh, and Robyn Derr helped the new sophomores and freshmen fit in. Coach Turner, sometimes called "Turn" by the team, was new to the school. "She was a really good coach and knew what was going on, but we didn't have enough talent among the players," said Captain Judi Grenney. "We need more girls coming out for the team because I know that there is a lot of talent out there."

Even though the team didn't have many victories, the games were close and kept the team members pumped and enthused for the next game. There was never a boring moment.

Jump Into Action

"Winning is not everything, but making the effort to win is." This young but spirited group of girls showed us a lot of effort this year by their 8-2 record in region and their great skill in the state tournament. "These girls have played hard all season; and yes, we were down at times but kept coming back. This was especially true in our (Logan) first tournament game against Tooele. We were down by three in the second overtime and ended up winning by two. This shows the character of a true champion," said Coach Bryant McKay.

10 Points for Effort

This year of men's basketball at Logan High was one of interesting turn arounds. In anticipation of the new season, the coaching staff was planning on rebuilding. The previous year, the Logan basketball team were the Region 5 champs. From that championship team, four valuable seniors were lost due to graduation.

The pre-season started off great with one of the best pre-season starts ever, 7-3.

With one of the toughest regions in the state this year, the Logan High Grizzlies' worst enemy was none other than themselves. Logan could have won a lot more games just if the field goal or free throw percentage would have been just a bit higher. The team field goal percentage was 32.5 percent and the free throw average was 57%.

All in all, the season was one of good points and bad points with the positive outweighing the negative. Coach Comadena warns though that the younger players are going to have to rededicate themselves in the off-season in order to be more successful next year.

Big changes were in store for the junior varsity, sophomore, and freshmen basketball teams. The coaches played musical chairs as they each took on the challenge of coaching a new team. Larry Williams coached the junior varsity team for the first time. The team played well and shows promise for their senior year. The sophomores ended with the best record of any of the basketball teams. Perry Christensen was their coach and enjoyed working with a younger group this year. Roger Wilson made his return to coaching as he trained the freshmen in basketball fundamentals.

Splash

The swim team enjoyed a very successful season this year. While lacking in numbers, they more than made up for it in quality.

Losing only to Ogden High, the girls team earned an awesome record of 10-1, while the boys team finished with a record of 5-6.

Both the boys and girls pulled a second place at the region meet, losing to Ben Lomond and Ogden respectively. Not fairing as well at state, the girls swam to a sixth place with the boys not far behind at ninth overall.

Several swimmers, (the ones with webbed feet) including Jenny Speth, Judi Grenney, Sharlyn Gunderson, and Pia Vemmelund, placed in the top six in their events.

Two relay teams also made the top six, the first made up of the four mentioned previously, and the second consisting of Joe Pitkin, Steve Wegener, Chris Nettleton, and Brian Toohey.

A large part of this success ought to be credited to the new coach, Yolanda Bates, who pushed each swimmer to new limits of hard work and dedication. The long hours of training paid off and times dropped amazingly. Working with team captains Sharlyn Gunderson and Steve Baker along with co-captains Jenny Speth and Chris Nettleton, they fired the team with enthusiasm unequalled in other years.

"I'm really excited to have a wrestler place first in state, the first one ever. I'm pleased with the results we had this year. Basically, we had a fairly young team. I only had three seniors. They were good workers and paid the price," commented Coach Ron McBride.

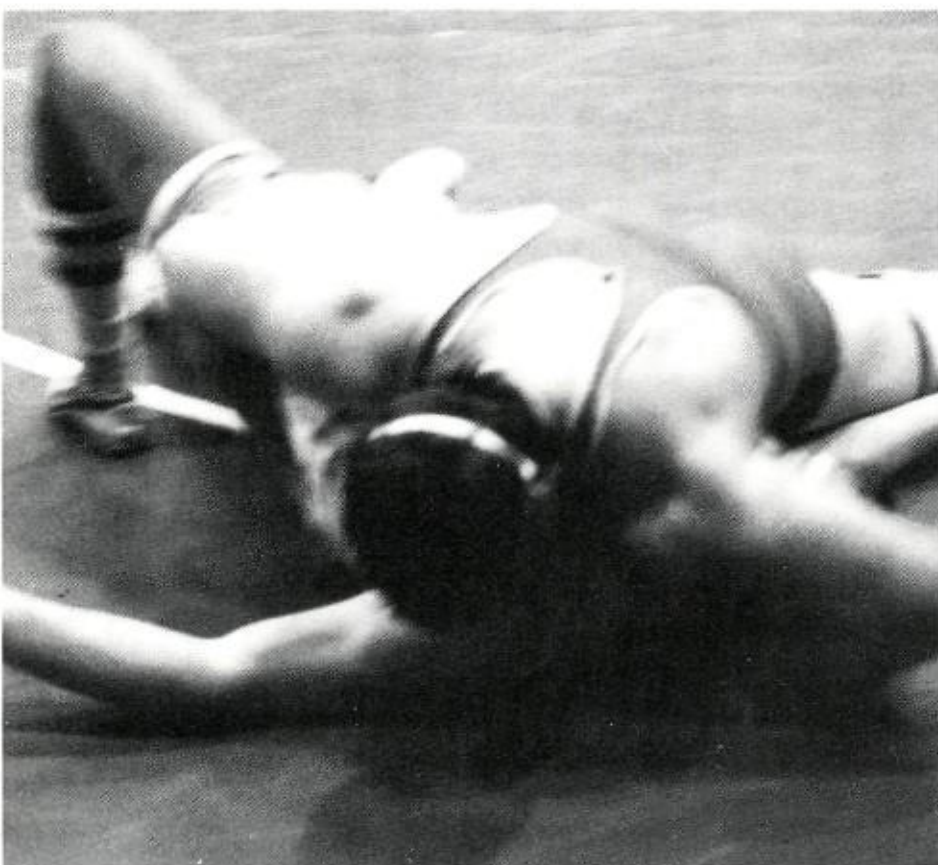

The wrestling team did an excellent job ending with a 12-2-1 record. They headed for region knowing they were going to do well. The team in whole did great. Kim Ashcroft (98), Matt Duce (119), John Swallow (132), and Shawn Kaae (HW) all placed first at the region meet. Jim Godfrey (115) and Derek Matlock (138) both placed second.

Spring Sports?

As the snow melted and the grass grew greener, the Logan High Grizzlies started playing. There was still a chill in the air as the fans cuddled in their blankets, but the action warmed the crowd as Derek Matlock, Jay Garner, and Pete Bailey would sling those racing fast balls, the secret knuckle ball, and the crazy curve ball right into the hands of Brooks Potter.

Meanwhile, Kent Haslam, Craig Reese, and Mike Plowman were guarding their bases. The alert outfielders, Mike Groll, Todd Hlavaty, and Jeff Shepherd, were waiting for the ball to fly into their waiting traps.

Each game was a new and exciting adventure. They went into the season with great expectations after winning the state championship for league teams during the summer. Derek Matlock and Kent Haslam also went to a winter camp at BYU for a week to sharpen their skills.

The Restless

"Being on the yearbook staff was a lot of fun," commented Kim Coray, "but it was especially difficult because the yearbook had to be done in two trimesters instead of a whole year." One aspect of producing the yearbook was easier, though. All the copy was put on the new IBM computers which made it easier to edit and correct.

Along with the work came the fun, and the staff managed to have plenty of that. The highlight of the year was the float the staff entered in the Homecoming parade. The staff was amazed when their float took second place. They were even more amazed when studentbody president and Amphion staff member Pete Miller awarded them a $15 check for their efforts.

Advisor Kathy Zilles summed up the year by saying, "I'm glad it's over!"

GRIZZLY

Quality not quantity was the main focus for the Grizzly staff this year. The staff felt that it was more important to have quality stories in less newspaper editions than to have more newspapers with less newsworthy articles.

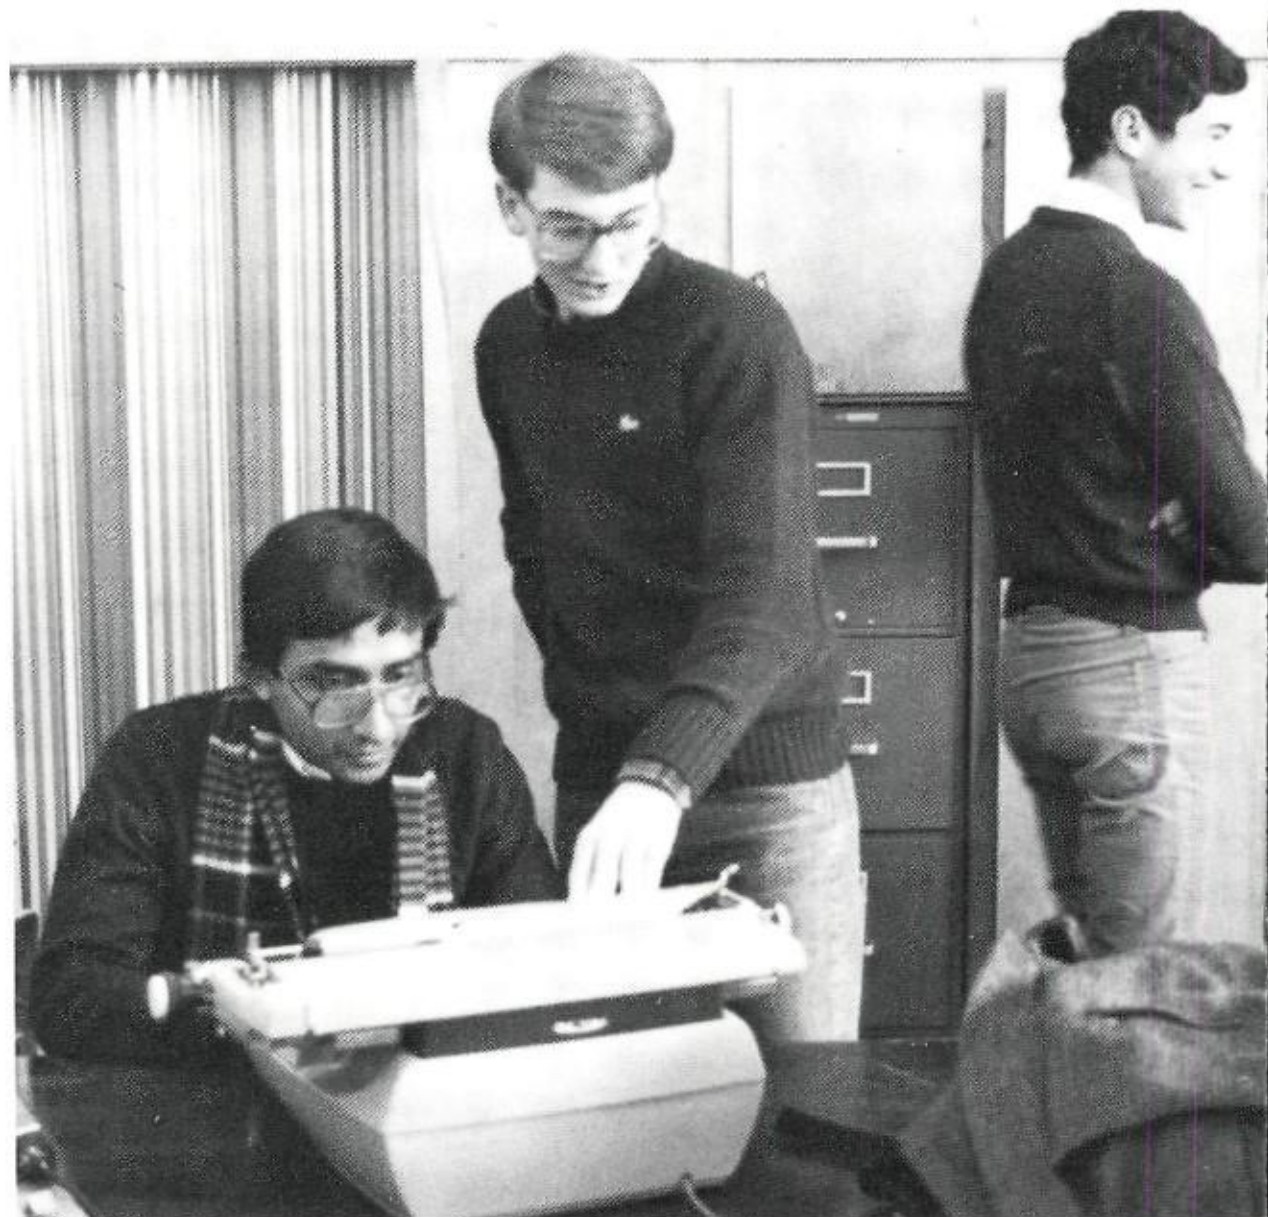

"We wanted the Grizzly to be different from other years," stated Business Manager Ben Blair. The staff believed that the newspaper seemed even more improved from previous years.

Nate Alder acted as editor. He kept everything running smoothly and efficiently even though being a member of the Grizzly staff was an extracurricular activity. With the help of the news, focus, and sports editors, as well as the reporters and columnists, the editor produced praise-worthy newspapers.

"It's been good to see the students' reaction to our different sections and articles," said a staff member. The sports section kept the students informed on not just the football and basketball but also the other sports that Logan High was proud of. Students loved reading the opinions of other students, and the entertainment section was a favorite for all.

The 84-85 Grizzly year will always be remembered for their quality stories, which were the staff's main priority.

A Tradition of Excellence

Sing: To produce musical or harmonious sounds. This definition from Webster's Dictionary is one that fitted the Logan High Chauntaires well.

In November, they joined with Sky View's choral group and sang at the regional fireside that Ardeth Kapp spoke at. The annual Christmas concert was also held.

"The best part about Chauntaires was performing, said Helen Parkinson. It was fun to sing the songs we had learned for people."

The Chauntaires were invited to sing at the USU Chorale Invitational where they were judged in several different categories. In May, they finished off the year by singing at graduation.

"I liked Chauntaires because of all the fun people that were in the class," remarked Jana Steed. "They're a nice bunch of kids," added the group's director, Mr. Tueller. "They have lots of potential; and when they apply themselves, they sound great!"

Around

Orchestra Officers: Director Ted Ashton, Sam Smith, Cathy Wolley, Mark Furlong, Jennifer Sharp, Robyn Derr, Barbara Griffin, Scott Farley.

The Logan High Symphony Orchestra was one of the best 3A orchestras in the Western United States. Through the hard work of Mr. Ashton and approximately 90 members, the orchestra put on many concerts including a pops concert in February. The orchestra also attended the Mt. Hood Orchestra Festival in Portland, Oregon this spring.

Along with the Symphonic Orchestra, there was the Chamber Orchestra and the Wire Choir. The Chamber Orchestra consisted of about ten of the more advanced players, and they met at 7 o'clock in the morning. The Wire Choir was a fiddling group of about six people who enjoyed the humorous aspect of music seen in fiddling. The Orchestra program at Logan High was one of excellence and this year's group has done a fine job of carrying on this tradition.

Crimson Colony members spent a lot of their time singing. First, they came early in the morning, "O Hour," for Crimson Colony. Then they had Chauntaires during third period. Finally, if they were in the musical, they had Theatre Arts.

Members of the group had to try out last year. They were required to sing a solo for Mr. Tueller and their chorus class. Then there were "call backs."

The group held many concerts throughout the year under the direction of Mr. Tueller. Their many hours of hard work showed in their performances.

In Step

By adding the freshmen class to Logan High's studentbody, the marching band greatly increased in size. This allowed the marching band to give a larger, more detailed and polished field show.

They competed in the Nebo Tournament of Bands at Payson, where they received 3rd place in one of the highest divisions in the state after only competing in that tournament for two years.

Under the direction of their drum majors, Chris Nettleton and Louis Paul, the band marched in three parades including the U.S.U. Homecoming, Logan High Homecoming, and the American Legion Parade in Salt Lake City. At the end of the marching season, the band also lead the way for the gubernatorial candidate Wayne Owens as he walked in a parade to Logan finishing his campaign.

After many hours of rehearsing in both rain and snow, the marching band performed during halftime with a style that showed their school spirit.

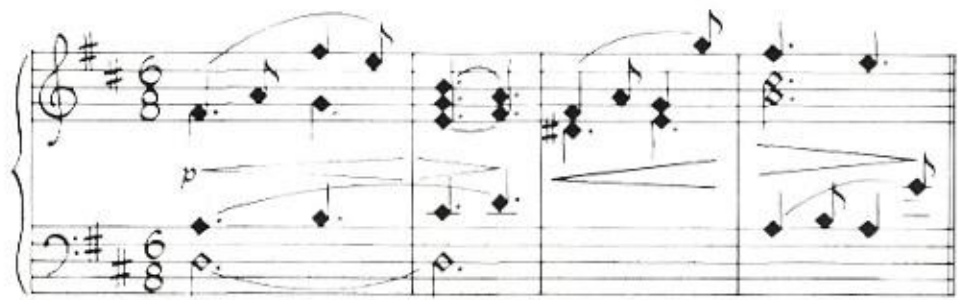

The members of the jazz band showed their dedication to the band just by showing up at the early hour of 7 a.m. The band not only performed in the regular concerts and competitions, but they also performed at dances and private parties. They were taught blues and jazz music as well as basic music theory, which enhanced their musical capabilities.

Many hours of practice were required for the concert and symphonic bands during which they were taught to be better musicians. The bands were also introduced to new types and styles of music. With the skills they learned, they entertained the public with many performances.

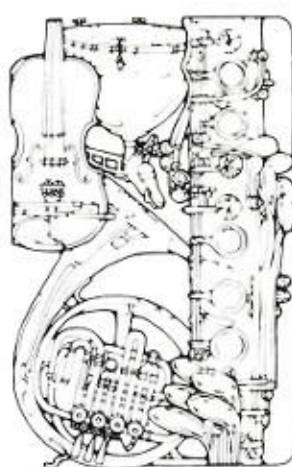

Playing at the football and basketball games kept the Pep Band busy. They enthused the crowd with their renditions of pep songs, and gave the team members the spirit to go on and win. Fifty people from the concert and symphonic bands joined together to form this organization.

All of the bands supported the school during many activities from the concert stage to the football field. Under the directors, Dan Stowell and Tom Nelson, the band was able to grow and add to their musical ability while adding excitement throughout the year.

Boys' and Girls' State Play Government

Going to Boys' and Girls' State was a fun learning experience for soon-to-be seniors. They attended SUSC and USU for a week during the summer. There they ran for government positions. Justin Toth was elected mayor of his city while Pete Miller was chief of police. Meanwhile at Girls' State, Marja Mecham was a county and state delegate, MaryLyn Christensen was a finalist for governor, and Cathy Woolley was a city commissioner.

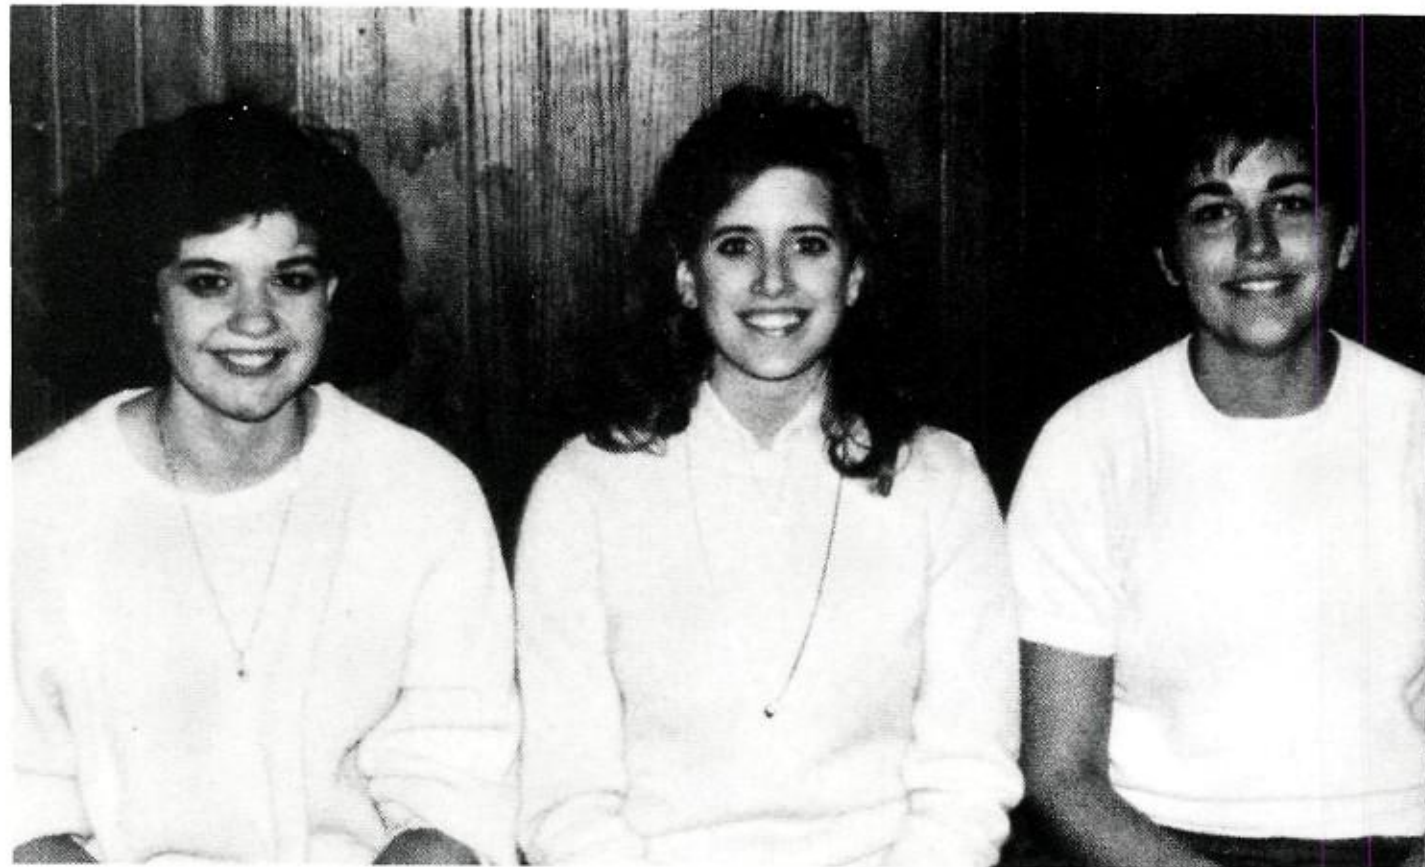

All that attended gained a better knowledge about the government we live under. Who knows, maybe someday they may take that knowledge and put it into use.

The Appointed Keep Track

The appointed officers have had a very hard job. The "L" point clerks had to tally the amount of points each student earned for participation in sports and organizations and being named to the honor roll. Stacey Brown was the busiest right before the "L" banquet. She had to find which seniors had 175 points or more. These seniors were eligible to attend the banquet and receive an "L" pin.

Historian Jana Thomson recorded the events which took place throughout the year with pictures and stories. She included articles about students who received special recognition and who had unique talents.

All in all, the school could not do without these appointed officers. They did their job silently and without much reward, but their job was one of the most important in the school.

THAT ADDED TOUCH

The Boys' and Girls' League helped make this a great year with special activities.

The Girls' League did an excellent job coordinating the powderpuff game at Homecoming, and they let all of the guys know who the boss was during Wacky Women's Week during February.

The Boys' League contributed to this year's activities with their highlight being the John Goddard assembly.

Both the boys' and the girls' organizations were generous at Christmas time when they donated a decorated tree to a needy family. With alot of hard work, the Boys' and Girls' League have helped make this a successful year. The officers of this clubs deserve the thanks of the studentbody for a job well done.

A Day in the Life of a Close-Up Student

It all began on Saturday, November 2. Everyone jammed into the van with Advisor Stuart Howell manning the wheel. "There will be a slight delay," announced a squeaky voice over the loud speaker. "Ah, that slimey fiend," exclaimed the crowd waiting to begin their torturous flight East.

After the slight delay of three hours, the Logan troop became airborne. We arrived at the airport in the eye of a storm and then were ushered off to a hotel in Arlington, Virginia. "Your roommates will be from Snellville, Georgia," the counselor informed us. We were off, luggage in hand, looking for our room. "Ah, 231, that's it!" I opened the door and to my surprise I found two well-dressed guys.

"How y'all doing?" To the best of my knowledge, I translated this as "Hello, how are you." By the end of the week though you could catch me saying y'all, and you could hear my Georgian roommates saying you dudes.

Close-Up Participants: Pete Miller, Noel Palmer, Justin Toth, Stan Smith, Nanette Alderman, Tanya Olsen, Advisor Stuart Howell, Sharla Brown, Lael Sharp, and Teresa Thomson.

Pete Miller meets the President?

Noel, MaryLyn, and Stan visit the capitol building.

The week of activities in Washington D.C. ranged from a V.I.P. tour of the city to an election night party. Yes, the group from Logan was fortunate enough to be in the nation's capitol during the presidential elections.

Each morning we would attend seminars all over town in different well-known buildings. The seminars taught us more about the American government. We were even lucky enough to visit the Pentagon, the most private building in the United States.

After our seminars, we would tour. We visited the capitol, all the monuments, the cemetery, everything! If it was historical and over 100 years old, we saw it.

Saturday, November 9, finds the same group again jamming into the van and heading homeward. Everyone is already missing the city of government and their new-found friends from Snellville, Georgia.

Students Lobby

Under the direction of Mr. Haslam, the Student Senate worked on and planned the activities for Logan High. With Pete Miller serving as president of the senate, members would debate on such matters as dances, assemblies, and fund raisers.

The Student Senate consisted of the studentbody officers, class officers, and the league officers. The newly organized House of Representatives was comprised of a representative from each home room. The House of Representatives was formed to provide better student input on school activities.

Studentbody officers Pete Miller and Zann Horlacher listen to suggestions for activities.

Unforgettable!

Unforgettable! That's what the 1984-85 Logan High Spirit Squad tried to make of the school year for the athletic teams and the studentbody. "The squad rapport was excellent. They were a highly skilled group that had the attitude of cooperation," stated Vice Principal Larry Haslam.

Starting out with eight new members made things more difficult in the beginning, but they all worked hard. During the summer at the U.S.A. Spirit Camp, the squad did great with the cheerleaders receiving a first place trophy and the songleaders a superior rating. Together they brought home a spirit stick.

During the year they tried their best to create school spirit and spent extra time trying to make their pep rallies as good as possible. They also sponsored the successful Spirit Week.

Mike Groll summed it up by saying, "They are the hardest working and most creative cheerleaders we've had in the three years I've spent at Logan High!"

Question: Why would 150 sophomore and freshmen girls dress the same on certain days during football and basketball season?

Answer: Spirit Club

Spirit Club was a great way to get sophomores and freshmen involved in activities during their first year of high school. It helped to build school spirit.

They participated by sponsoring the Girl's Choice Dance in November, decorating the rooms of both the football and basketball teams, and, of course, cheering on Logan High at football and basketball games.

To raise money for their activities the Spirit Club had a number of fund raisers. In July they had a car wash at Fill-'Em-Fast and High Country gas stations. During the fall they sold candy bars.

Hi-Lo's Take State

Sore muscles and no sleep were just some of the benefits of being a Hi-Lo. While most agreed that getting up early enough to make it here for 7 a.m. practice was somewhat of a pain, the general consensus of the group was that being a member had been something to make their year a change for the better.

Being a member required everyone to quickly learn to cooperate with girls they may have hardly even known. There were some rocky times when opinions clashed, but the performances always went smoothly.

The highlights of the year were winning the Utah Drill Competition in February and taking both region and state. At the Utah Drill Competition, Kelli Lund was named Miss Drill Team Utah. Tori Kemp and Mary Roylance also placed in the top ten. Kim Andrews and Mary Roylance were honored to be named to the All-State Drill Team. The Hi-Lo's were advised by Peggy Bates, a former Hi-Lo herself.

Debaters Excel

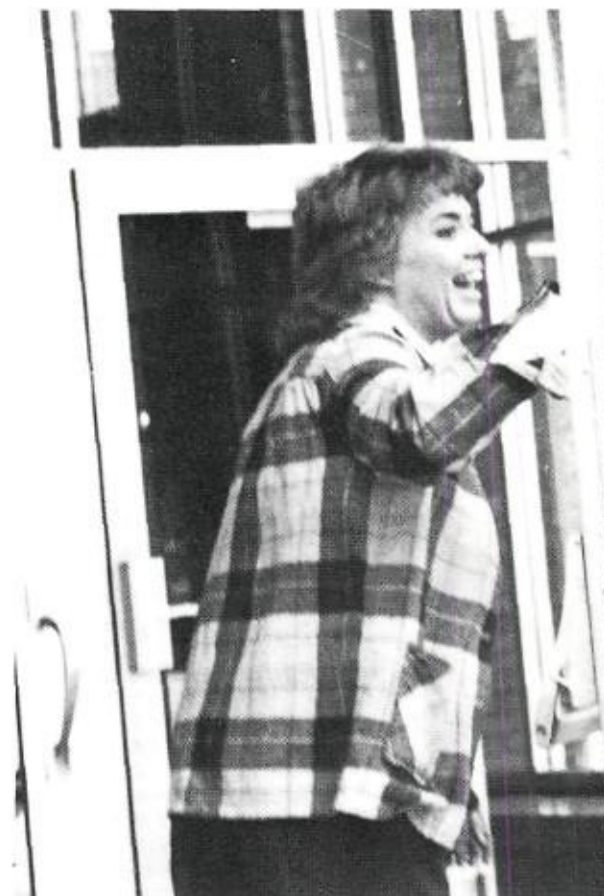

Over the past two years the debate program at Logan High has become stronger than ever before. With the return of the 45 juniors and seniors (JV and Varsity) and the new enrollment of 12 new freshmen and sophomores (Novice), the debate program accelerated at a rate far greater than previous years.

Debate is taught mainly by Ms. Lott, although Mr. Howell taught one Novice class. Ms. Lott sacrificed much of her time helping students prepare for meets. Speaking of the students in debate, Ms. Lott commented, "The kids enrolled are strong, sharp, academic people who fight for recognition."

Debate students enjoyed having her as an adviser and friend. Her teaching style showed that independence and self motivation go hand in hand. She managed to make debate a more flexible and less structured class, which the students greatly appreciated.

The debate team, novice, JV, and varsity went to approximately 25 tournaments, and did VERY well at all of them. The novice team proved to be as strong as the JV and varsity by bringing home as many trophies as they did.

Chuck Smith, a Varsity member believed, "Debate is an excellent way to make friends, enemies, and get 'tweeked'."

- 2) The "Varsity Debaters" pose around the "Bissel."
- 3) Justin Toth, Sugata Biswas, and Kevin McQuarrie show off the prizes.
- 4) Greg Waddoups moves the official debate fridge while Louis Paul and Kevin Robson supervise.
- 5) Mark Thorpe is the epitome of a student congress chairman.
- 6) Barbara Griffin and Roxanne James, illustrious Bissel Weekly editors, discuss the next issue.

Once upon a time and not so long ago, there came to be a law which stated: Any money found in the Bissel will go toward a new couch for the lounge. This came to be known as the Bissel Fund. The Bissel was a handy automatic, cordless sweeper which became indispensable. The bissel was used as an excuse for Offical Bissel Week, the Bissel Weekly, the Duke and Duchess of Bissel (who were never really decided upon), a great way to raise money, and a number of other disturbances. "The world came to a standstill when our beloved Bissel was brutally abducted!" screamed Roxanne James, secretary, Bissel Weekly. "It was quite a shock for us when we found out the debate mascot was stolen from the lounge." Debaters depended on the Bissel for events that were to have transpired during this celebrated week. Miss Lott received a ransom note which stated if Sugata's mustache was not shaved off, the Bissel would be melted. At the end of the week the Black Masks (the Bissel nappers) turned themselves in, and the beloved Bissel was returned to its home in the lounge. The debaters were known for their exciting parties which occurred throughout the year. The Novice Initiation Party held in the Rec Center made the novices wonder what they were doing in debate. But after winning many trophies, they became accepted as one of the group. The Christmas Party was filled with cheer, movies, dancing, and food. This party was ended with one of the main of the events of the year, the "de-mustache-ing" of the Noble King Sugata. With the choruses of debaters chanting "On the First Day of Christmas Sugata Gave To Me" and the help of Mike Young, the mustache was removed. Sugata's first words were, "Now I look like every other Mormon in Utah."

Karl Wilson reflects on the fun he had at State Close-Up.

State Close-Up

"State Close-Up gave me a new understanding of our government and the way it works," commented Roxanne James.

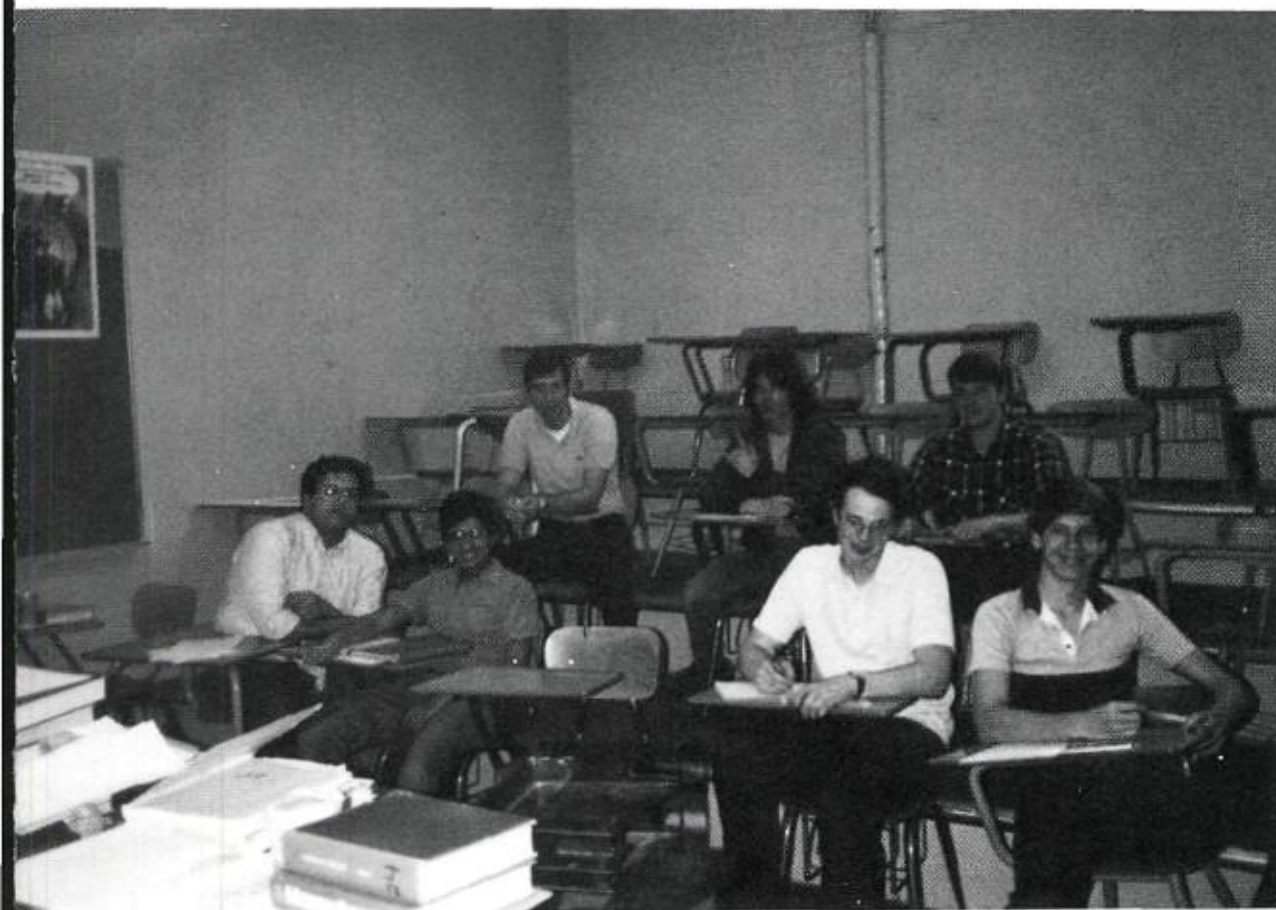

Early on the morning of February 6, eight juniors, accompanied by Mr. Howell left for Salt Lake City to participate in Close-Up. During their two day stay in Salt Lake the students were able to observe our legislature in action, take a tour of the State Capitol, listen to informative workshops on current political issues, and participate in many other worthwhile activities.

Mock Trials

Mock trials began at the end of February with very competitive sessions of tryouts. Students who wanted to participate in Mock trials had to give a five-minute prepared speech and a four-minute impromptu. After viewing the tryouts, Miss Lott finally made the tough decision, and two teams were formed. She commented afterwards that the decision to cut some of the students was a very difficult one.

The two teams started practice at the first of March with two hour practices four days a week after school. Many of the members found that the long practices helped their performance ability greatly when it came time to compete in April.

The Mock trial case this year was a case dealing with drunk driving. Participants found it both fun and interesting to work out the intricacies involved.

The Key To Success

Although there were only about 15 people in Key Club this year, they still got a lot done. Under the supervision of Mr. Ballard they raised money to donate $50 to the Statue of Liberty fund, helped needy families by donating to the Bear River Association fund at Thanksgiving, served the faculty, cleaned out the trophy case and helped Adam school with their Halloween festival. All in all it was the quality of their activities that counted and not the quantity of its members.

"Key Club was a fun way to get involved in school and to help the community," commented Advisor Clark Ballard. Key Club was a big success under the leadership of President Audrey Rodebush, Vice President Brian Hendricks, Secretary Michelle Boyce, and Treasurer Mija Park.

Logan High's Stage Crew Engineers

Every Monday right after school, a group of boys meet with Mr. Hirschi. This group of boys make up the Stage Crew. The Stage Crew learns how to use and take care of audiovisual equipment. This includes fixing everything to microphone cords to replacing stage lights. They also operate equipment for school assemblies and productions. Before each major performance the lights must be adjusted, too.

Under the direction of manager Alan Stettler, the stage crew continues operating equipment throughout the summer.

International Club And Their Travels

If judged by its size, the International Club with its approximately 200 members has been the most successful organization at LHS. With the help of the advisors, Mrs. Frakes and Mr. Max Allen, they had some great activities.

The first thing that had to be done was electing officers. The presidents were Carrie Finchum and Lisa Miller, the secretary was Teresa Thomson, and the treasurer was Lucrecia Calderon. All of the races were very close.

A Russian culture night was the club's first activity. They ate Russian food which was prepared by the students, had speakers who had recently visited Russia, and saw some excellent slides. The party was a real success.

Said one enthusiastic member, "It's been a lot of fun as well as a learning experience."

Challenging the Slopes

"The ski club is the best thing that's ever happened in behalf of this school," stated Wendy Neuberger.

Ski bums and ski bunnies of all kinds joined the ski club in its second year run. If not for his bright yellow ski attire, it was difficult to distinguish Advisor Bill Emmett from the rest of the skiers as he accompanied the club members on their excursions.

Besides parties and ski days at Beaver Mountain, the ski club spent a sunny Saturday at Park City. "It was excellent," exclaimed ski bunny Marja Meacham.

Science Buffs

Even though the science club was small this year, the participants performed a variety of experiments some of which included chemical gardens, explosives, and alloys. The club also had a guest speaker, Dr. Eisenhower, the dean of the college of science at Utah State University. The science club was comprised of science-oriented students. It gave them the chance to do their own experiments in a relaxed atmosphere.

Summing It All Up

Although there was a marked decrease in the number of organizations at Logan High, the groups that were active enjoyed very successful years.

The Hi-Lo's had one of their most exciting years ever taking first place overall in each of the competitions they entered. The Spirit Squad kept us amused with their pep rallies and helped us cheer our teams on to victory. The debate team took first place in region, and the Mock Trial teams did equally well. The musical groups all excelled with the jazz band placing first in region, the orchestra representing Logan High at a festival in Oregon, and the marching band placing in the Nebo Tournament. Members of Crimson Colony and Chauntaires lent their musical talents to a successful "Annie."

All in all, it was a good year for the organizations at Logan High. Students involved in the activities associated with these groups will never forget them.

SENIORS—Breaking to the Top

Senior Class Officers: Lezlee Lyons, secretary; Justin Toth, senator; Mike Groll, president; Jana Steed, senator; Kirsten Landeen, vice president.

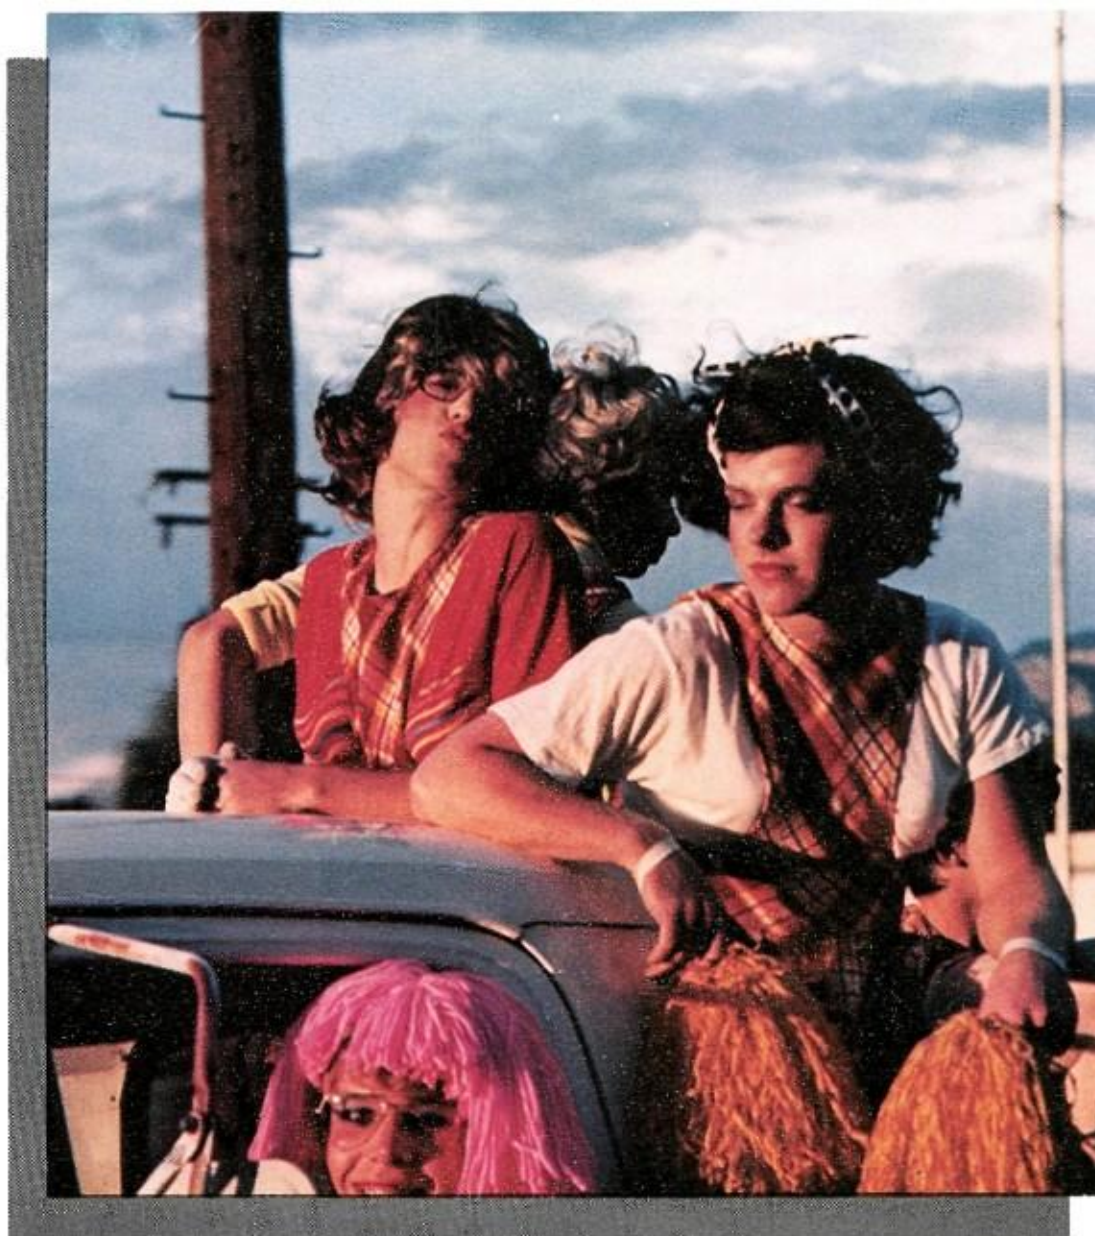

Before the school year had ever begun, the senior class officers had things well in hand. Under the presidency of Mike Groll, new and exciting activities were planned and carried out far beyond their expectations.

Senior week was a great success highlighted by painting the town, powderpuff, and the homecoming parade and ending in a Logan victory under the lights of Crimson Field.

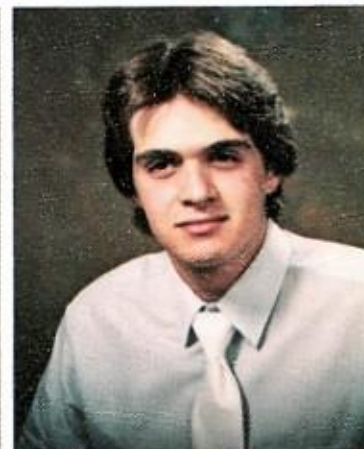

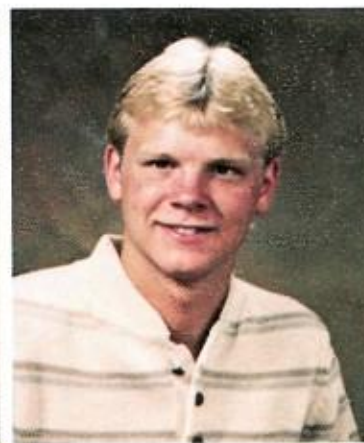

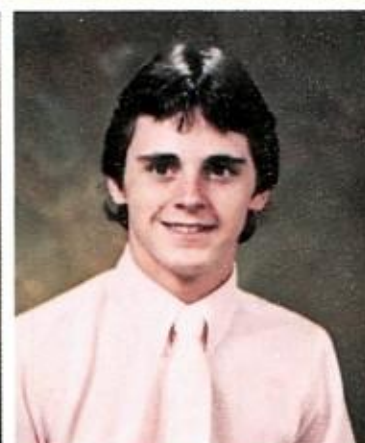

During the rest of the year, the officers welcomed suggestions from the studentbody resulting in better assemblies and activities.

On October 5, a representative from the League of Women Voters registered the seniors who had or would turn 18 before election day. This enabled them to participate in the presidential election on November 6. The representative registered over ten seniors who were eligible to vote.

The voting seniors were fortunate to be able to vote the first year they were eligible. Some past seniors have had to wait as long as two years before they could exercise their right to vote.

Now that a few seniors can vote, it gave them a better reason for taking a closer look at the candidates and the principles and purposes each stand for.

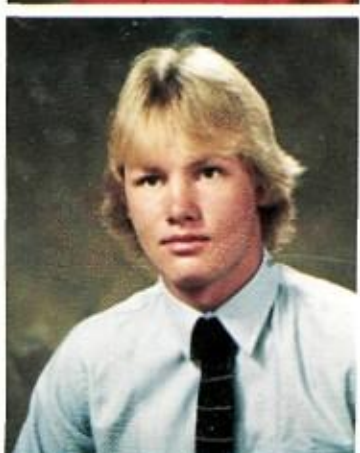

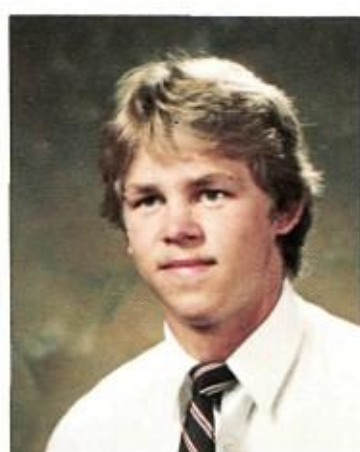

Many of the new voters used this new privilege to express their ideas and opinions of how the country is run. They now can say that they helped elect a president.

Breaking Upward

The Junior Class, under the direction of President John Swallow, Vice President Karl Wilson, Secretary Allison Walton, Senator Teri Thorne, and Senator Courtney Olson, enjoyed a good year. They held a car wash during a heavy rainstorm and sold ice cream for fund raising activities. They had one of the better floats for the Homecoming parade, even though it never got there.

A stag dance was held in January to raise money for Junior week. Karl Wilson said, "It was a really fun and the Prom was great." The Junior Morp was also a success. The Juniors practiced many hours and put out a tremendous effort preparing for their assembly. Everything fell into place, and the assembly was a success.

The Juniors learned what high school is really all about. They were still the middle group in the school, but many signs were shown to prove that they were ready to reign on top. The 1984-85 year was very eventful and exciting. All of the Juniors who got involved can look back with fond memories.

Sophomores—

Breaking Through

Sophomore class officers President Mark Rigby, Vice President Anne Bentley, Secretary Laura Karren, and Senators Susie Hunsaker and Mark Fjeldsted enjoyed being part of this great year at Logan High.

They worked together selling nachos and candy to raise money for the class coffer. They also gave input at Student Senate meetings.

The officers directed the sophomore class activities which included building the bonfire for Homecoming, sponsoring a float in the parade, and decorating a Christmas tree for charity, but the sophomore assembly and the Morp proved to be the highlights of the year.

Freshmen—

Breaking In

The first freshmen class officers at Logan High School were Nicky Elison, Jana Schiess, Kim Alvord, Chris Thomson, and Tori Allen.

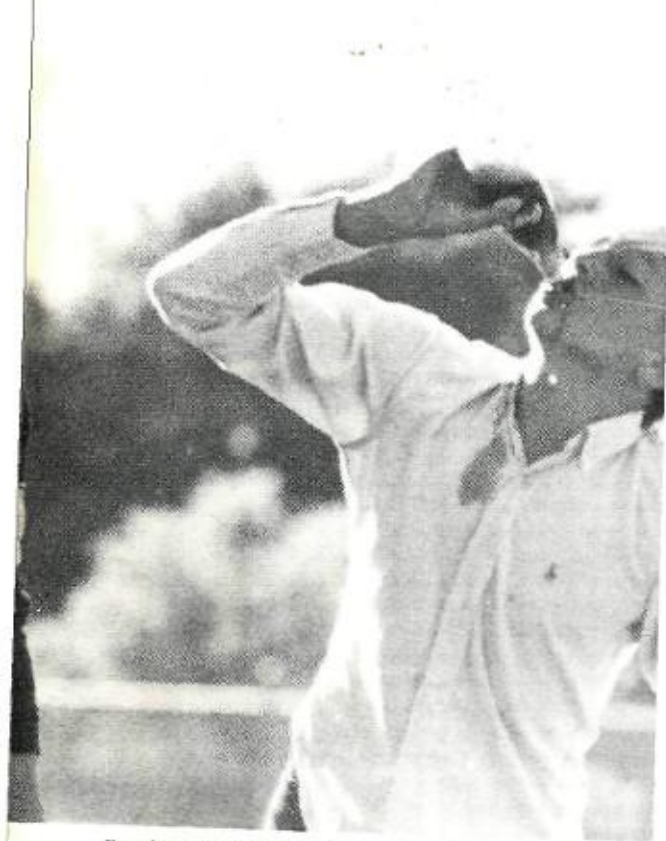

The freshmen officers started their first year in high school in a big way. They put together a class float for the Homecoming parade and were awarded first place for their efforts. They also were the voice of their classmates at Student Senate meetings.

The five officers helped make the first freshmen class make an impression for freshmen classes to come.

ACADEMICS

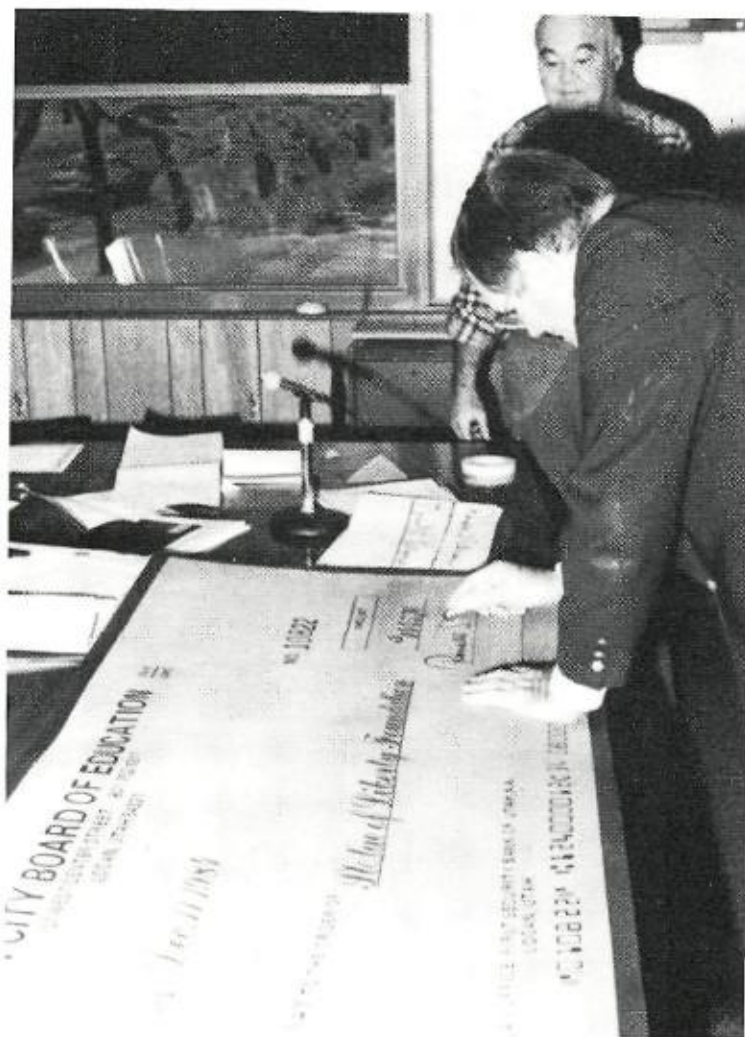

Beginning the year as a four year school and the three trimester program did a lot to improve academics.

Principals and School Board

School Board Members Front Row: John Emmett, Malcom Allred, Ronald Peterson, Gordon Haws. Row Two: Superintendent James C. Blair, JoAnn Wimmer, Robert Williams.

Logan School board members sign a check for repairs on the Statue of Liberty.

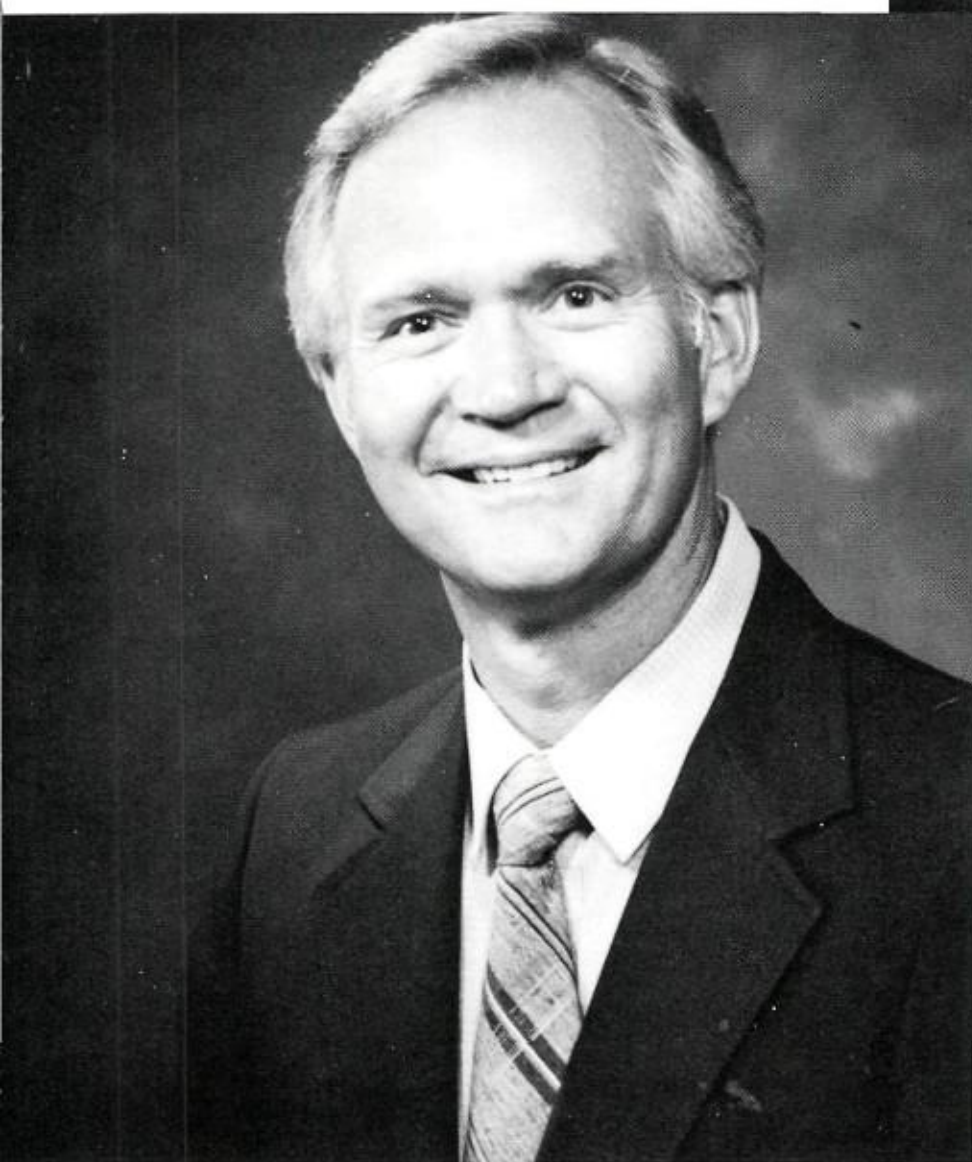

Mr. Haslam uses unusual discipline procedures on Marnie Brown.

Mr. Olsen searches desperately for Friday's schedule.

Principal Rulon Olsen

Vice Principal Larry Haslam

Discipline, school activities, important decisions, answering questions, and helping students were just a few of the duties the administrators at Logan High performed.

Principal Rulon Olsen and Vice Principal Larry Haslam maintained a great attitude about the school even with all the changes that occurred. They both agreed that our school had the "Winning Attitude."

They really made a hit with the students when they chose to let the studentbody out of school early to go to the state football games. However, all of the decisions they had to make were not as well liked, but all knew they were for the good of the school.

The school board also played an active roll in school matters. The change in school curriculum was reviewed and approved by both the school board and Superintendent Blair. Their decisions were well thought out and based on knowledge and experience.

The school board was reelected in November by the people of Logan City. Each of the board members ran uncontested. Board members included Joann Wimmer, Malcom Allred, John Emmett, Ronald Peterson, Gordon Haws, and Robert Williams.

Keeping the Office in Order

As office manager, Peggy Humeston had her hands full this year. Her duties didn't just include typing the daily announcements and answering phones, but also advising the Spirit Club and Spirit Squad. Mrs. Humeston made sure the office ran smoothly throughout the year.

Luann Tripp, treasurer, had help from a computer to make her job easier. Mrs. Tripp was in charge of all money coming in and going out of the school and recorded it all on the computer. Mrs. Tripp also made sure the vending machines were full enough to keep students happy.

Top right: Mrs. Tripp keeps busy with the books.
Right: Mrs. Tripp explains a purchase order to Colleen Hunt.

Taking Care of Business

Kaye Luchérine kept busy this year taking care of all attendance, absences, and sluffs. Daily duties included issuing off-campus permits, notifying parents of sluffs, and getting the excused, not excused, and cut lists to the teachers. Mrs. Luchérine worked hard to keep up with all the students this year.

Geneil Rigby took care of all Mrs. Wallentine's and Mr. Ballard's appointments. She kept records updated on the computer and made sure new students got oriented and off to a good start. Juggling both the counselors' schedules kept Mrs. Rigby busy all year.

Below: Mrs. Rigby types a report for one of the counselors.

The Framework

Mrs. Rhea Wallentine, Counselor

They fix your schedules, help solve your problems, clean up after you, fix your lunch, and can even cheer you up. You might think this description fits your mother, but it also fits the counselors, cooks, and custodians.

The cooks, under the direction of Coralee Clark, planned and prepared hot lunches for the students each school day. Betty Cook, Elmina Haderlie, Devona Roberts, Marieta Sanchez, Tamara Johnson, and LaRue Koeven made sure lunch was everyone's favorite part of the school day.

The custodians had a difficult job ahead of them when the English department was damaged by a fire in October. They worked long, hard hours to clean and repair the building while still maintaining their regular work load. The full time custodians are Russ Williams, Mike Hayter, Ron Schaeffer, Lowell Mauchley, and Roger Williams, head custodian.

Counselors Rhea Wallentine and Clark Ballard always seemed to be there just for you. New challenges met the counselors as scheduling was changed to the trimester system. The computer did not seem to realize that you had to take Chemistry A before Chemistry B. This caused more than the usual amount of class changes to be made and thus, far more work for the counselors.

LaRue Koeven smiles after a good day's work!

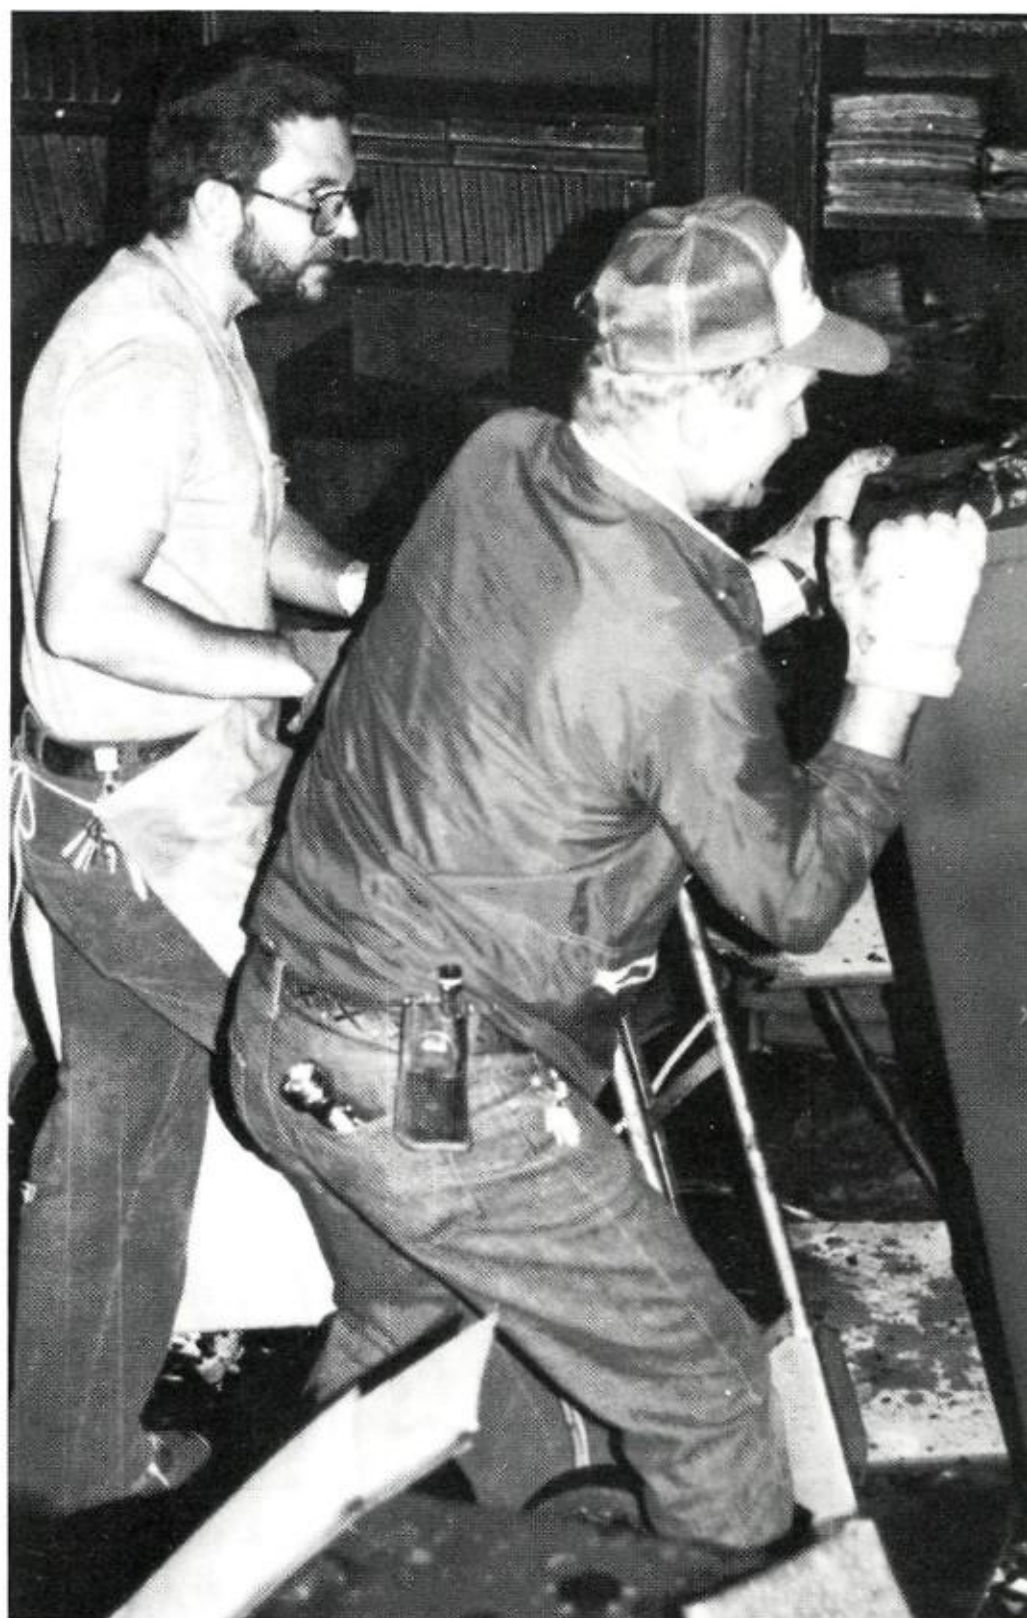

Mr. Clark Ballard, Counselor

Elmina Haderlie makes sure that school lunches are well balanced.

Mike Hayter and Russ Williams clean up after the fire.

English

English Sterling Scholar Nanette Alderman

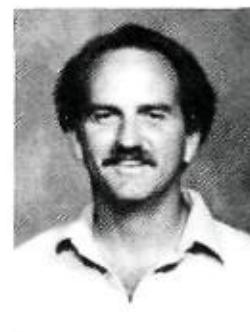

Nanette Alderman was chosen to represent Logan High's English department in the annual Sterling Scholar competition. Nanette has taken A.P. English and was a member of the Amphion staff. She enjoys English because it helps her put her thoughts into words. She is also an avid reader.

Nanette was active in many organizations during high school. She was a member of FBLA, Pep Club, and the National Honor Society. She traveled to Washington D.C. her senior year with the Close-Up program. Nanette has been on the honor roll every term since beginning high school.

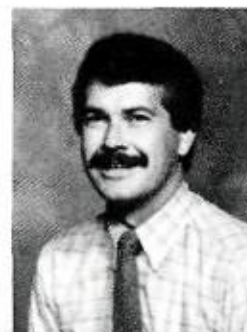

Nanette's hobbies include snow skiing and water skiing. The summer before her senior year Nanette had a rather unusual job. She fed coyotes.

"I'm really worried about this homework!"

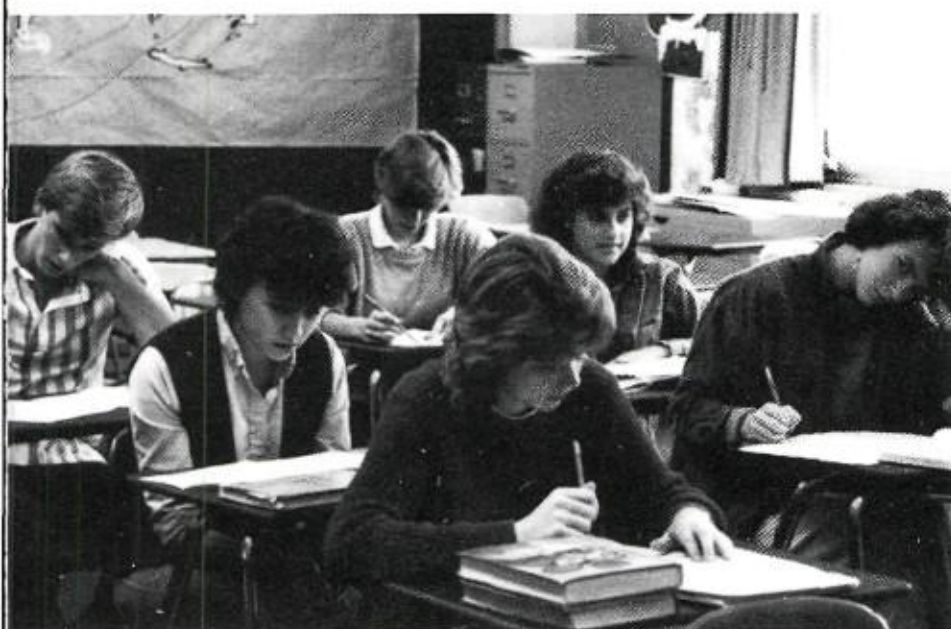

Chris Nettleton, Kelli Lund, Sanya Powers, and Tom Albee learn the wonders of WANDAH.

"Aaaaahhhh, Mondays."

Mr. Barfuss wonders if his class is still with him.

"Tests, tests, tests."

The English Department took on a whole new look this year. They moved their headquarters to the old Woodruff Elementary School, and Mrs. Stock and Mrs. Johnson moved from the junior high school to teach the incoming freshmen.

Another new addition was WANDAH. WANDAH is a computerized writing aid and author's helper. WANDAH helped English students at all levels prepare, revise, and polish up essays and short stories. The program was developed at UCLA, and Logan High was the first high school in the United States to pilot this program. WANDAH was marketed in July, 1985, almost a year after it was put in use at LHS.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

The Foreign Language Department hired a new teacher, Mrs. Bacher, because of the increase of foreign language students. Freshmen will now be required to take a foreign language in order to graduate. Taking a foreign language class involves not only learning the language, but also the country's culture. Mrs. Frakes brought in several speakers throughout the year to talk about life in French-speaking countries. Her classes enjoyed learning, and the break from the pattern. Mr. Allen's classes celebrated after major tests with a food day. His students sampled foods from different Spanish speaking countries.

Lisa Miller, Foreign Language Sterling Scholar, is one of the few seniors who has taken language classes beyond second or third year. She enjoys snow and water skiing, volleyball, football, snowmobiling and many other sports. She worked at the school board office and at Robintino's. After graduation Lisa plans to attend college and study business and Spanish. In the future she hopes to work with computers in an office where she can use her knowledge of Spanish "for the benefit of the business world."

Because of the success of the new fine system instituted last year, the library decided to continue it this year. Computer printouts were posted on the doors to inform those with overdue books that their books were STILL out. "But I remember turning it in" was a common quote, only to find the faulty book buried under heaps of trash at the bottom of the locker at the end of the year.

Below Right: "I will not continue until the whole class is silent," a disgusted Mr. Howell states.

Nate Alder was chosen as this year's Social Studies Sterling Scholar. He has had a wide variety of social studies classes and has received a scholarship to Japan. He is also involved in many school activities such as newspaper staff, debate team, ski club, and the newly-formed sailing club. But Nate's busy schedule doesn't just include school. Some of his leisure activities include reading, sailing, golf, basketball, and both water and snow skiing. His immediate plans for the future include serving an LDS mission and college. Nate hopes to further his education at either law school or graduate school.

And Then Some

Students at Logan High had a wide variety of social studies classes to choose from. These classes ranged from forensics to parenting education. All the social studies teachers made their classes as interesting as possible. Parenting education students spent a week experiencing parenthood. Their "children," ordinary eggs, were carried with them at all times or a babysitter was hired if necessary.

Psychology students spent several days at the Exceptional Child Center on the USU campus. Students helped the children with physical education and recognizing objects and names. They also spent a lot of time observing.

The social studies classes helped students realize and recognize the world around them.

"It's good to know the basics about human health. Someday it could really come in handy," stated Michelle Fehlman, one of Mr. Ryan's health students. Along with learning the basics of the human body and mind, health students learned about life saving techniques such as CPR and artificial respiration.

Physiology students learned the essentials of the human structure. Tibia, retina, and sternum became everyday words to these students. Physiology II classes learned how to take pulses and heart rates.

All science students participated in laboratory programs and learned from their experiments. "The science classes here are a lot of fun, but you have to work hard to get a good grade," was the comment of Kim Coray.

Greg keeps busy with school but makes time to enjoy other activities such as basketball and jogging. Greg's friends consider him a leader and a very friendly person. His future plans include attending college at BYU or USU.

It's obvious to see why Alan Stettler was chosen as this year's Vocational Sterling Scholar. Electronics, photography, and short-wave listening are just a few of Alan's interests and hobbies. Being assistant news editor for the school newspaper was just a part of Alan's busy schedule. He also served as the stage crew manager for the school and ran the camera for the new Mathelps program at the Logan City School Board Office.

After graduation Alan plans on pursuing a career in electrical engineering.

Home Economics and Driver's Education

Having been a cheerleader for five years, most people at Logan High associated Janalee Page with cheerleading. But she has many other talents that should be recognized. One talent in particular is that of her homemaking skills. Her skills in this area gave her the opportunity to be the LHS Homemaking Sterling Scholar nominee.

Having a mother that has sewn a lot and who taught her to sew, Janalee became interested in homemaking at a young age. She has always enjoyed sewing her own clothes and working on special projects and home crafts. When asked what made Janalee stand apart from the other Logan High seamstresses, Mrs. Jardine said it was her interest and special talent in the home-making area and the good quality of her work. Janalee was also assistant costume director for the musical, "Annie."

Winding a bobbin takes all of Pam Bether's concentration.

With Christmas approaching, Miesha Wood works diligently to finish up an advent to calendar to help her count down the days until the holiday.

Some people might define a home economics class as an hour for girls to get together and gossip and sew, but at Logan High homemaking was much more than that. There were classes available to both guys and girls in sewing, cooking, child development, and parenting. When asked what he thought about homemaking, parenting teacher Mr. McKay replied, "It's a trip."

One thing that most sophomores looked forward to during the year was driver's ed. It brought many new and exciting things to the school day. The driver's education students learned all they could about cars and the way they operate. For some it provided the first real chance to "get behind the wheel!" Most driver's education students found the course quite enjoyable, while others couldn't wait for it to be over so they could get their licenses.

Business

"We're lucky to have so many computers. We think the experience students gain here will help them in the job market," stated Mrs. Zilles. The NorthStar computers in the business department were replaced in the fall by 14 brand new IBM PC's. They were welcomed with a sigh of relief because of the greater variety of software that was available for the PC's.

Teaching full time in the business department this year were Mrs. Alene Hansen, Mr. Larry Williams, and Mrs. Kathy Zilles. They were joined by Mrs. Barbara Mei, who taught type and business applications with computers part time. Some of the many classes offered in the department were type, computer type, marketing, shorthand, business applications with computers, and office procedures.

Enrollment in the department was up because beginning with the class of 1988 students must take a semester of a computer class to meet graduation requirements. "Computers are great! They make typing a report so much easier. They do half the work," exclaimed Kelli Wengreen.

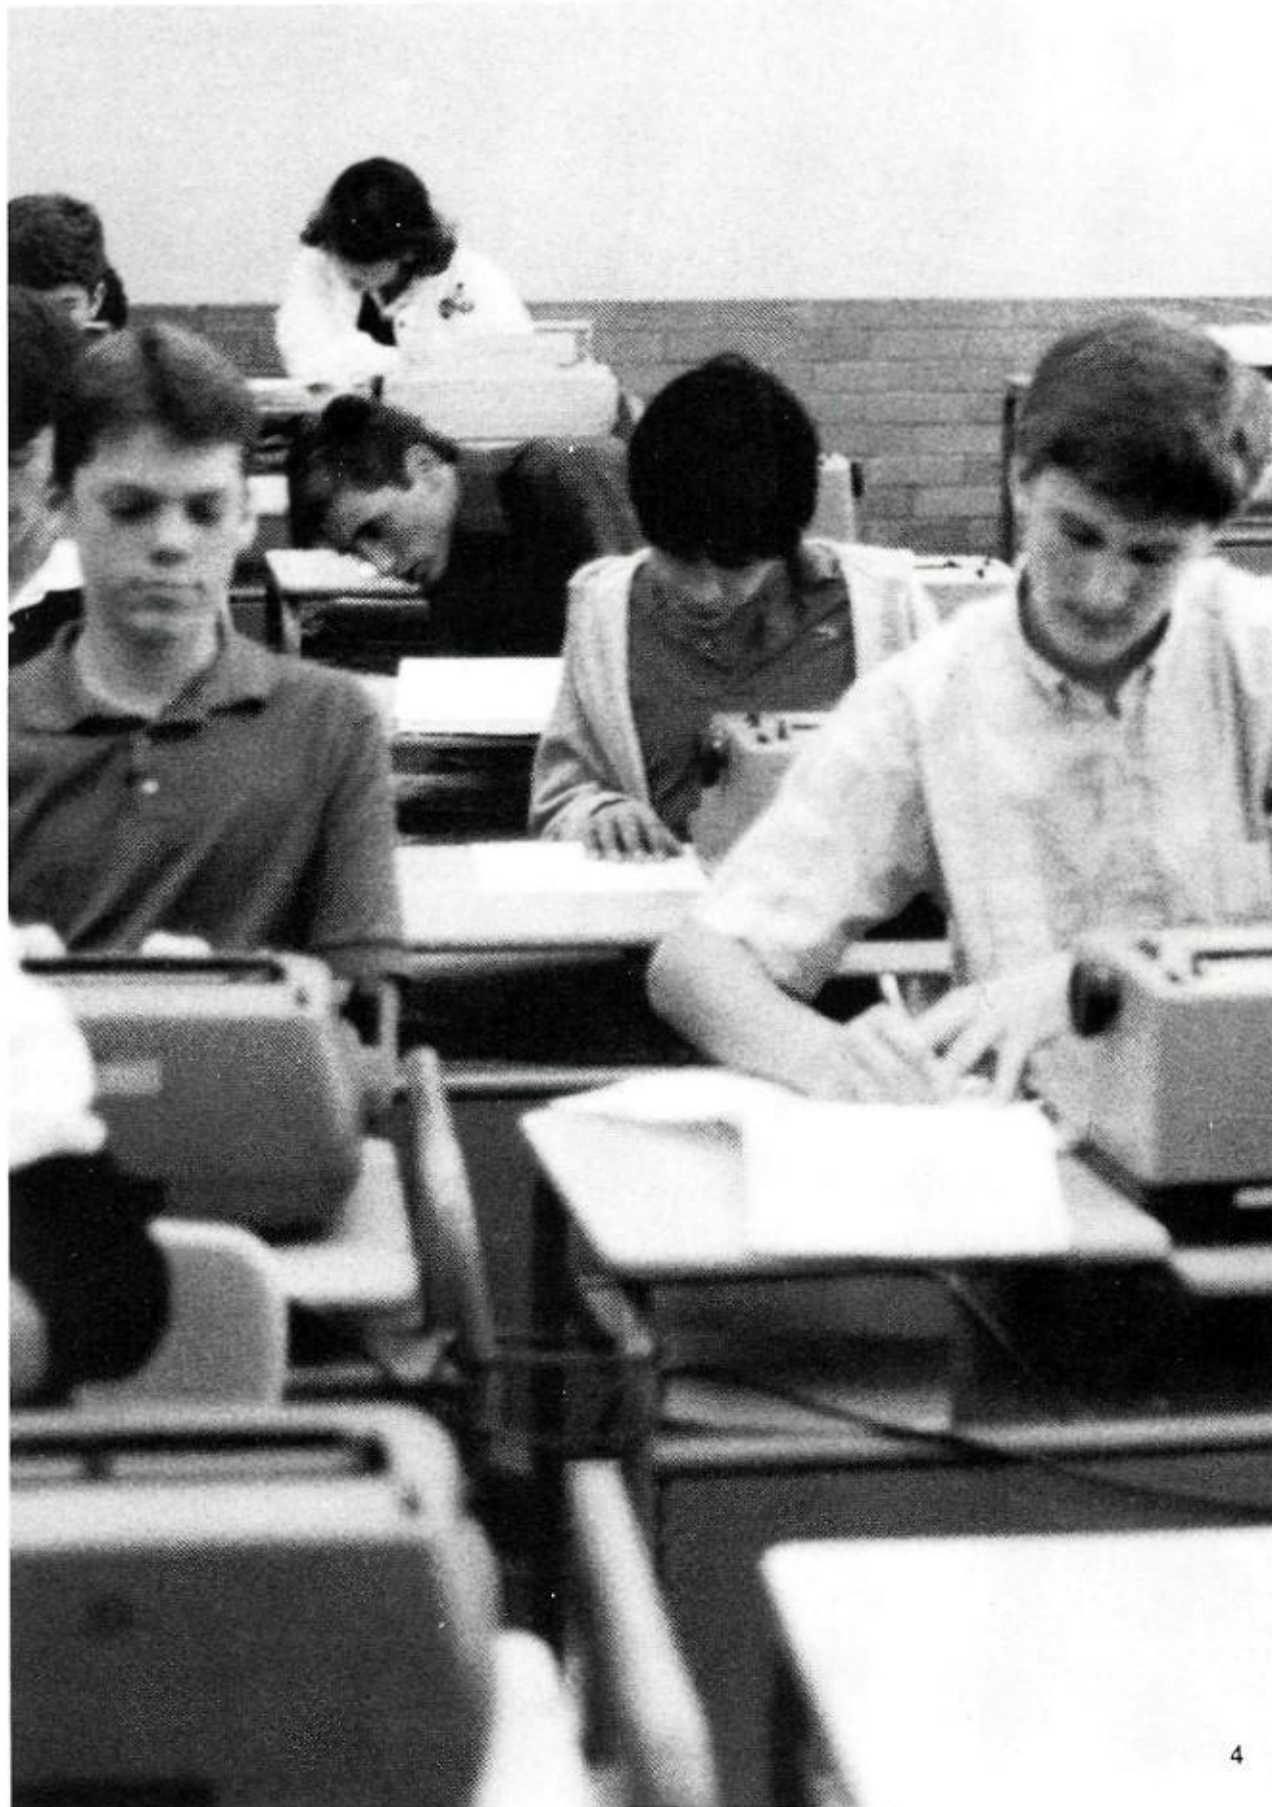

It's Her Business

Jana Thomson, selected as this year's Business Sterling Scholar, is a hard-working perfectionist. She excelled in business classes such as shorthand, business applications and type.

Jana's hobbies and interests include sewing, snow and water-skiing, and reading. She was the school historian and a member of FBLA. Jana has been on the honor roll every term. She was also a member of the National Honor Society. Her career ambition is to be a secretary.

Fine Arts Flourish

The new trimester program turned out to be a great advantage to the art department. Because of the twenty-minute extension of each class, students had ample time to work on their projects. Students chose from classes in silkscreening, jewelry, ceramics, and drawing and design. The more advanced art students took studio art where they were able to set up their own projects.

The art exhibit in April showed off the best work produced by the students at LHS. The art show was improved this year by the addition of new spotlights for the auditorium.

The music department maintained its high standard this year. Students were excited to get involved and put forth the extra effort that was needed to make the performing groups great. Throughout the school, you could hear music being performed by the orchestra, band, and the different singing groups. Many concerts were given for and enjoyed by the general public through this department.

Music Sterling Scholar Cathy Woolley

Cathy Woolley was this year's music Sterling Scholar. She has played the viola for 8 years and also plays the piano and organ. She was the principal violist in the LHS symphonic and chamber orchestra for three years and sat second chair. She has also been the principal violist at USU Summer Music Clinic for four years. Cathy has received superior ratings in region and state solo competitions.

She also shares her talents with others. She is on the faculty of the USU string conservatory and teaches a third grade music theory class. She has taught viola and piano lessons privately. She attended Girls' State and is a member of the National Honor Society.

Art Sterling Scholar Darin Duersch

Art Sterling Scholar Darin Duersch enjoys painting western subjects. He plans on entering some of his paintings in exhibits and competitions.

His interests are not limited to art only. He plays football and basketball and also likes to hunt. Darin was news editor on the school newspaper and a band president. He plans to go USU after graduation and major in civil engineering.

No Sweat

Sports give students skills that they can carry over into their lives. Many different sports were offered in each trimester of classes. Racketball, tennis, golf, football, basketball and softball were favorites of many students. It helped to strengthen and better their coordination. The sports that they learned will be great to know as a hobby or a recreational activity.

"We're partly able to offer so many classes because of our excellent facility," commented Coach Ryan, department head, speaking of the Logan Recreation Center. A few of the facilities provided include tennis, racketball, and basketball courts, a jogging track, and weight lifting and gymnastics equipment.

P.E. student, Brian Gould exclaimed, "Taking this P.E. class has helped me feel a lot better about myself while increasing my physical abilities."

Kelly Hubbard, General Sterling Scholar

One of the most distinguished honors given to a student at Logan High is that of being named General Sterling Scholar. This year the honor was given to Kelly Hubbard.

Kelly has been a member of the National Honor Society. He was enrolled in advanced placement courses. He was also an active member of the Chauntaires, and he attended Boys' State his senior year.

Roger Wilson
Comp. Math, Calc.

The math department relocated this year to the main building. Along with the change in location, the department received a computer lab which used Apple IIC computers. The classes available were Pre-Algebra, Algebra 1, Geometry, Algebra 2, Algebra 3, and Calculus. Under the direction of Richard Bradford, the department staff included Mrs. Elich, Mr. Gardner, Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Davidson. Teaching part time were Mrs. Croft and Mrs. Suddreth. Mr. Bradford also taught physics, and Mr. Gordon taught electronics.

Grant Robison goes over his electronics notes.

David Karren, Math Sterling Scholar

Considering that he is Math Club President and he is taking A.P. Calculus, it is no surprise that David Karren is this year's Math Sterling Scholar. David has always been good at math although he also is involved in Debate and other A.P. classes. David recently visited Europe where he traveled extensively throughout the summer. He was also active at this year's Boys' State.

David enjoyed school and was proud to be this year's Sterling Scholar

A student takes advantage of extra time.

The graduating class of 1985 left Logan High School after seeing many changes in the curriculum and the addition of the freshmen class. Football games were held at night for the first time and an attempt at putting an "L" on the mountain was made.

We have made many friends; some of which we will keep for the rest of our lives.

The Logan High School Amphion, volume 68, was printed by Herff Jones Company, Logan, Utah.

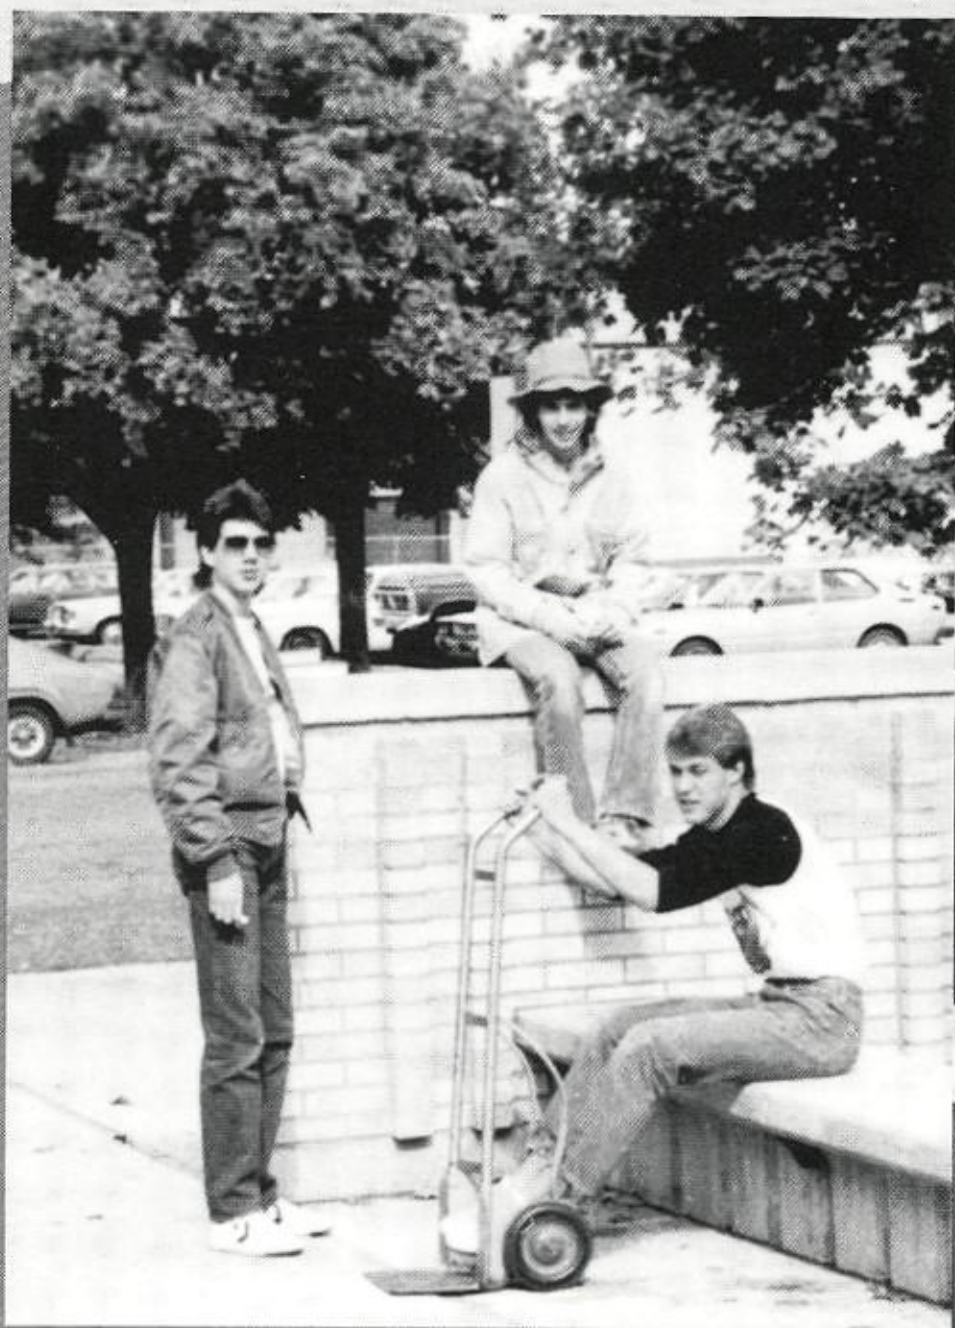

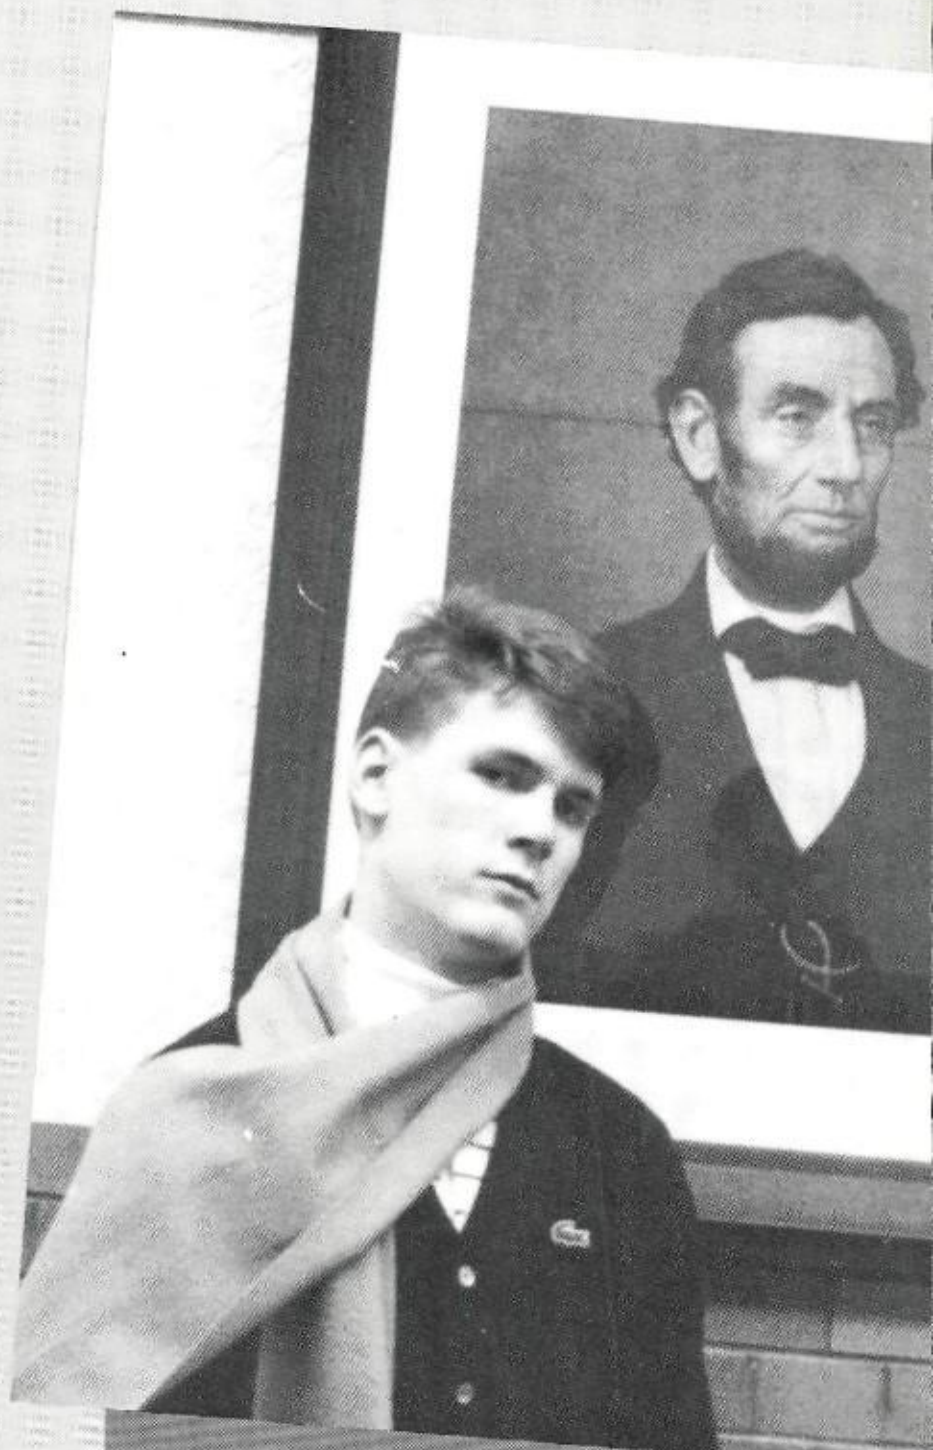

The class portraits, the administration portraits and the royalty pictures were taken by Felt's Photography. The cover and endsheets were designed by the Amphion staff. The division pages were created by Travis Rigby. The print for these pages was done in Brush.

There were 1075 books ordered 1053 were sold to students, teachers, and professional people. Each of the books was purchased for $13.

All of the copy and page identifications were done in 12 point type. The captions were 8 point. The theme section copy was done in 18 point. All headings were in 42 point.

"Breaking The Pattern" certainly summed up the feelings of this 1985 school year. Many changes were implemented into our school including the addition of the freshmen class and the three trimester schedule, the former increasing school size to 1085 students. Our football team did very well as did the wrestling, golf and girl's basketball team. Without the teammates strength and courage, none of our success could have been possible. Debate, band and the Hi-Lo's did very well in their respective tournaments. Involvement from students made this year one of the best school years yet.

Dennis,
 Let's see okay, life history of our interesting relationship.
 6th grade - due to popular belief you were after a girl named Alisa Van Noy remember??
 Well, junior high was an adventure wasn't it??
 Now, High School, well
 this is goodbye because I am (happily) no less moving to New Mexico.
 I can't say it's been all fun and games, but it's been an "adventure." I will miss arguing with you, but as a friend
 I am leaving with some advice.

1. Everyone has their own opinions and that is the way life is and you can't condemn people for their opinions.
2. You are a very talented person with a great future, but grades do count and you can do anything you want

Now, you are probably upset that I am using your yearbook to give "motherly" advice
 but,
 I hope for only the best things for you.
 Good Luck with whatever you go after.
